Whether student, faculty, staff, or visitor, those whose paths lead to The University of Mississippi find more than an institution of higher learning — they find Ole Miss. Numerous writers have attempted to capture the soul of the university with words, only to have its true essence elude them. As we began production of the 1997 Ole Miss, we understood the enormity of the task we undertook. We hope to reveal, through words and photographs, the aura of tradition, spirit, and promise that can be felt in the Grove on crisp October football afternoons, when passing between the columns of the Lyceum, or upon encountering a smiling face on the sidewalk. Woodrow Wilson's philosophy about uniting for a common goal reflects that of the university: "We cannot be separated in interest or divided in purpose. We stand together until the end." There is a feeling of cooperation and oneness at Ole Miss that transcends departments, educational levels, social circles, and heritage. This unity is the tie that will carry The University of Mississippi into the twenty-first century.

Student leaders at The University of Mississippi are not easily classified. There are many facets of leadership on campus and the students who fill the offices have individual visions of the future of Ole Miss. However, campus leaders bring with them a willingness to communicate with one another as well as those they represent in order to reach their common goal – betterment of our university. The most obvious form of leadership at Ole Miss is, of course, student government. Each year capable students are elected to fill Associated Student Body offices. With each office comes not only power, but a responsibility to the Ole Miss community as well. These campus leaders devote themselves to keeping the quality of life at Ole Miss high. Leadership at Ole Miss is not limited to student government. Student organizations also take a great part in shaping The University of Mississippi as we know it. To encourage student involvement they provide out-of-class opportunities for students to interact with others who share common interests. Campus organizations contribute greatly to the cooperative nature of the university by bringing students together. Ole Miss students come together not only through government and organizations, but also through activities which include volunteering, mentor programs, civic and religious events, and intramural sports. By taking an active role in the Ole Miss and Oxford communities, students help foster better relations between The University of Mississippi and its Oxford neighbors. Adversity and change have not broken the Ole Miss spirit, rather they have inspired reflection on the past and vision of the future. Through trials and growth the university has kept to its mission and looked to its leaders for guidance. Administrators at Ole Miss work diligently to make the Oxford campus a safe and comfortable environment for successful college careers. Through meetings with student representatives, faculty members keep abreast of students' views on issues facing the university.

University administrators are actively involved in new student recruitment, as well. These efforts by campus leaders to ensure good communication and lessen the divide between themselves and students at The University of Mississippi sets a premier example for faculty, staff, and students to follow.

s we began the 1996-97 school year, we returned to a campus resounding with plans of growth and betterment. Outlooks for the future of The University of Mississippi are positive, and a thrilling sense of expectation is in the air. he opportunity for continuing the legacy of excellence started at The University of Mississippi nearly a century and a half ago is evident. It is now our responsibility to unite our visions for the university and begin working toward the goals we have set for tomorrow. We will meet this call only by renewing our commitment to Ole Miss - our school, our Alma Mater, our home.

A very special thanks to Jason Baker, Philip LaMoreaux, and Trent Thompson for opening photographs.

Marked by the passing of Dean Louis Westerfield, the 1996-1997 school year began as the University mourned one of its finest leaders. Chancellor Robert Khayat began his second year as chief executive of the University of Mississippi with Dr. Gerald Walton serving in the newly created position of University Provost, a role which the school year saw him perform with integrity and effectiveness. Vice Chancellor for Student Life Richard Mullendore entered his first fall semester at the University with vibrant ideas to improve student living conditions and the academic atmosphere on campus. New administrators were sought as a national search yielded a Director for the McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College, and the positions of Associate Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and Associate Provost for Information Technologies were advertised. In a year characterized by unprecedented opportunities for campus progress, Ole Miss administrators, faculty, and staff led the way with extraordinary vision and concern for students. Guided by greatness, the University of Mississippi looked to the twenty-first century with confidence in its leaders, an indomitable spirit, and a thrilling sense of unity.

Chancellor Robert C. Khayat

Trent Thompson

Robert C. Khayat received his undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Mississippi. Later, as a Sterling Fellow in Law, he received the LL.M. Degree from Yale University.

An Academic All-American in football, Dr. Khayat has demonstrated that leadership as a student athlete can provide the foundation for future success. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Phi Delta Phi, and Phi Kappa Phi honorary societies.

Chancellor Khayat began his career at the University of Mississippi in 1969 as Professor of Law. He has also served as Associate Dean of the Law School, Vice Chancellor for University Affairs, and Executive Director of the Sesquicentennial Celebration prior to being named Chancellor at Ole Miss in July, 1995. He was named Outstanding Law Professor for 1993-1994, and in 1994, members of the Mississippi Law Journal endowed a scholarship in his honor. Dr. Khayat was President of the NCAA Foundation from 1989-1992 and has been a practicing attorney and municipal judge.

Active in professional and civic affairs, Dr. Khayat has served as President of the Chamber of Commerce and as a member of the Mississippi Bar Foundation. He is a member of the Board of Directors for the Institute for Technology Development and the Mississippi Valley Title Insurance Company. His leadership in higher education was recently recognized by his appointment to serve as a member of the National Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance, and on the College Presidents Steering Committee for the America Reads Challenge Program.

Dear Ole Miss Students:

When we pause to reflect on the 1996-1997 academic year at the University of Mississippi, we are pleased by the progress, challenged by the opportunities, and excited about the future. We have witnessed extraordinary efforts of students, alumni, faculty, administrators, staff, and friends to invigorate and strengthen our University. This action has led to tangible leaps in a number of areas.

During the distinguished history of our University, students have provided energy, vitality, compassion, laughter, and inspiration to the community. Individually and through a variety of organizations and activities, our students have continued to demonstrate that the University is truly a laboratory for leaders. As the number, quality, and diversity of students increased, the commitment to our core values remained firm. The class of 1997 is well-prepared to meet the challenges of the 21st century; those who follow you will build upon the strong foundations you have built.

Recognizing that today's quest for knowledge is deeply rooted in technology, the University has become wired to the world, from its residence hall rooms to its classrooms. Through an extensive underground network made possible by vision and planning during the past decade, the University is providing a system for students to use personal computers to search library records, check class schedules and grades, and communicate with professors and fellow students, as well as access the Internet from the privacy and convenience of their dorms. Instead of hearing students say, "Call me!" to each other as we walk through hallways and across the campus, we hear, "Send me an e-mail!"

As a community, we made a commitment to academic excellence and the creation of a nurturing, beautiful, and safe campus environment conducive to student growth and development. The year saw many more devoted faculty members join the ranks of those using cyberspace, multimedia classrooms and computerized laboratories to capture the interest and imagination of students and prepare you to compete in a global marketplace after graduation. Faculty became more involved in counseling and advising. An array of web sites on the Internet enabled the University to begin providing a wealth of information to attract and support students. Http://www.olemiss.edu became a standard part of our communications programs, as prospective students applied for admission and explored financial aid via the Internet. And online registration is being perfected for use this summer.

Everywhere you looked on the Oxford campus, there seemed to be bricks and mortar in motion. But buildings were not the only things "under construction," as we continued our commitment to making this campus as student friendly as possible. A campaign to encourage more students to use priority registration was a great success for the spring semester and helped us attain a goal we all share – shorter lines! Final touches were put on architectural plans to turn the Old Gym into the new Student Services Center – a one-stop area for students to take care of their business from tuition and fees to career counseling. A decision was also made to postpone Rush until mid-fall 1997 to ease some of the pressure felt by new students.

Our quest to obtain a coveted Phi Beta Kappa chapter intensified, and our ability to attract high-ability students was enhanced in 1996-1997. Netscape President and CEO James Barksdale and his wife, Sally McDonnell-Barksdale -- both Ole Miss graduates – gave the University $5.4 million to open the McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College, which impacted our enrollment along with other efforts. The fall enrollment saw an impressive increase in National Merit Scholars, as well as in the number of freshmen from Mississippi. Non-resident enrollment continued to be strong, reflecting our status as a national university.

With regard to bricks and mortar, more than approximately $70 million in state and private money is being pumped into the Oxford campus in renovation and construction projects over the next three years to create an environment that better supports academic excellence.

We continue to be both extremely grateful and humbled at the level of support the University receives from alumni and friends. This was a historic time on that front, with private gifts totaling $25.3 million – the largest amount ever in one year. This amount represents a 43 percent increase over last year, with our endowment growing to $137 million. This is meaningful to students because 53.1 percent of endowment income is designated for scholarships, 31.3 for academic support, 11.8 for faculty support and 3.8 for library support. Our generous and loyal alumni and friends are ensuring that you and students who come after you have the academic foundation needed to succeed after graduation.

To the 1997 graduates we wish success in both personal and professional pursuits. The University truly is reflected in the lives of our students, alumni, faculty, and staff. Together we can make this University and its future anything we want it to be. Please join us in keeping the flame of academic excellence burning bright now and in the new millennium through support of extraordinary educational opportunities and outstanding programs.

The faculty and staff join me in thanking each student for your contributions to the life of our beloved University.

Robert C. Khayat
Chancellor

Vice Chancellors

Dr. Gerald Walton
Provost and Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs

Dr. Walton is a Neshoba County native whose life demonstrates devotion to the University of Mississippi. With two graduate degrees from Ole Miss, he has gone on to serve the University as an English professor, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, Associate Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs, Interim Chancellor, and now Provost and Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs. As Provost, he oversees planning and policy on the Oxford, Tupelo, and DeSoto County campuses. Chancellor Khayat says of Dr. Walton, "His dedication to Ole Miss, its people, and its future is unwavering."

Dr. Carolyn Ellis Staton
Associate Provost and Associate Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs

A native of Vicksburg, Dr. Staton is an integral part of the University's leadership. She earned her Juris Doctor from Yale Law School in 1972 and returned to Mississippi several years later. In 1994, she served as a Defense Secretary appointee to the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Service. In 1995, she was named Mississippi's first Outstanding Woman Lawyer for her contributions to the state's legal system and her work on behalf of women's rights and child abuse issues.

Mr. Robert W. Dowdy
Interim Vice-Chancellor for Administration and Finance

Dr. Don Fruge
Vice-Chancellor for University Advancement

Dr. Richard Mullendore
Vice-Chancellor for Student Life

Dr. Mullendore came to Ole Miss in the Spring of 1996 from UNC-Wilmington to create what he has coined a "student centered environment" at Ole Miss. In 1994, Dr. Mullendore received the President's Award from the National Orientation Directors' Association.

Associate Vice Chancellors

Dr. Michael Dingerson
Associate Vice-Chancellor for Research

Dr. Dingerson, Dean of the Graduate School, came to the University of Mississippi in 1986. He received his Ph.D. in Higher Education from Southern Illinois University - Carbondale. In 1988, Dr. Dingerson received the Excellence Award from the Society of Research Administrators.

Mr. Thomas Wallace
Associate Vice-Chancellor for Student Life

Mr. Wallace came to the University of Mississippi after having served as principal at Ford Elementary School in New Albany, Mississippi. Mr. Wallace received his Masters in Education Administration and has served as Interim Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs twice during his tenure at Ole Miss.

Kirk Fordice, prior to his election as Governor, lived in Vicksburg, Mississippi, for more than thirty years. He earned a bachelor's degree in civil engineering in 1956 and a master's degree in industrial management in 1957 from Purdue University.

Following graduation, he served two years' active duty as an engineer officer in the U.S. Army. In 1977, at age 43, he retired from the Army Reserve at the rank of colonel.

Before his election as Governor, he was a professional engineer and president of Fordice Construction Company.

In 1995, Governor Fordice became the first contemporary Mississippi Governor elected to two consecutive terms. Governor Fordice is Chairman of the Southern Growth Policies Board and immediate past Chairman of the Southern Governors Association. In 1994, the Cato Institute recognized Governor Fordice as one of three governors in the nation to receive an "A" grade for fiscal policy.

Governor Fordice and his wife, the former Patricia Owens, have four children and seven grandchildren. They are active in the Crawford Street United Methodist Church, in Vicksburg, Mississippi.

SCHOOL OF ACCOUNTANCY

THE UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI

The University of Mississippi's School of Accountancy was approved by the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning in 1978, thereby becoming one of the first separate schools of accountancy in the United States. As early as 1929, however, Ole Miss graduates began receiving degrees of accountancy through the department of accountancy in the business school.

The baccalaureate and master's degree programs have both achieved separate accounting accreditation. In 1983, the School was admitted into the prestigious Federation of Schools of Accountancy.

The curriculum for the University of Mississippi's School of Accountancy is designed to prepare graduates for careers in private accountancy, industry, government, or education, as well as professional certification.

The logo of the School of Accountancy is inscribed with the wording, "Founded in 1979," the date of the founding of this, Ole Miss' newest school. Enclosed in the oval is an image of the state of Mississippi with large red letters "UM" superimposed. The logo is printed on a field of silver, which is the color for the School of Accountancy.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

THE UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The logo for the School of Business Administration portrays the arrival pavilion for the new business/accountancy building complex, which is currently under construction. The pavilion symbolizes the academic strength of the School's programs and the continuity of its commitment to excellence in business education.

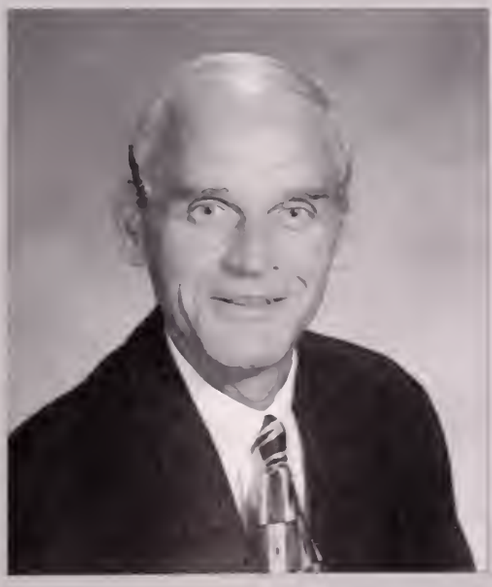

Established in 1917, the School of Business Administration is committed to its vision of becoming a nationally respected professional center of education and research in which faculty, students, and the business community join together in an active learning partnership. The school's dedication to its mission and values compel it to provide its students with a broad-based education, including a solid foundation in business administration, and the development of a full range of skills and leadership competencies.

The School values the application of advanced information technology in all teaching and research activities as well as the creation of an innovative learning environment rich in diversity, creativity, teamwork, and high ethical standards. Comprehensive programs in finance, economics, general business, insurance, international business, management, marketing, management information systems, real estate, journalism and advertising, and petroleum land management enable students to attain a strong education in their chosen field.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Created in 1903, the School of Education is dedicated to the preparation of people for effective leadership and service in school, home, and community. The School of Education prepares leaders in the areas of teaching, exercise science, leisure management, fashion merchandising, dietetics, and food service management.

The School of Education at the University offers a wide variety of programs to its students to provide them with enrichment experiences and career options. The School participates in the Mississippi Teacher Corps which organizes opportunities for Education students to earn their Masters degrees while teaching in the state of Mississippi.

Chancellor Robert Khayat is the first graduate of the University's School of Education to become Chancellor.

The School of Education's establishment date, 1903, is prominently displayed across the logo for the School. Three traditional colors assigned to the academic robes and tassels that represent the composition of degrees in the School of Education were selected for the banner.

SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING

The School of Engineering banner features the school's logo, which was designed by Ole Miss students. The seven symbols represent each of the academic programs offered in the School of Engineering. The red and blue stripes on either side of the banner represent the colors of Ole Miss.

The University of Mississippi Engineering School was founded in 1854. Headed by Dean Allie M. Smith, the Ole Miss School of Engineering is presently the oldest school of its kind in the state and this southern territory.

Comprised of six academic departments, the programs offered stress the engineering sciences and are based on natural sciences and mathematical concepts. Students may study engineering in the fields of chemical engineering, civil engineering, mechanical engineering, general engineering, computer science, geological engineering, and electrical engineering. Advancing student career objectives such as medicine, law, or business, the Engineering School has produced many of the nation's leaders.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

EST. 1927

Although the first graduate courses were offered in 1848, the Graduate School at the University of Mississippi was officially established in 1927. Graduate courses leading to a Master's degree were offered beginning in 1870, and the first Ph.D. was awarded in 1893. The Graduate School coordinates the degree work of over 1700 students and the research of over 400 faculty.

The Graduate School holds membership in the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States. Its faculty consists of approximately 400 members who are qualified to offer graduate work in the College of Liberal Arts and the various professional schools.

The University of Mississippi's sponsored research efforts have grown 318% from $7.7 million to over $32 million in the past eight years, a key indication of the institution's maturation in quality research. In 1991, for the first time in its history, the University of Mississippi graduated over 100 doctorates and surpassed $20 million in sponsored research funding.

The encircled portion of The Graduate School's banner depicts two important symbols of graduate education: the book, a symbol of knowledge - learned, recorded, and maintained - and the laboratory beaker, a symbol of research and the advancement of knowledge. These symbols rest upon the Latin phrase "Eruditio," knowledge acquired by scholarly research.

THE SCHOOL OF LAW

The Mississippi Legislature first established a Department of Law at the University of Mississippi in 1854. The School of Law is the fourth oldest state-supported law school in the United States, is a longstanding member of the Association of American Law Schools, and is fully accredited by the American Bar Association.

All law programs are housed in the five story Law Center on the Oxford campus. The Lamar Center opened its doors as the home of the University's School of Law in 1978. The contemporary structure is one of the best designed and well equipped law teaching and research facilities in the country. The Eastland Law Library consists of more than 280,000 law volumes and related items.

Acting Law Dean Dr. William Champion joined the Ole Miss faculty in 1965. While at the University, he has served as Assistant Law Dean, Associate Law Dean, and Director of Admissions for the Law School. In 1980-1981, 1986-1987, and 1989-1990, he was named Outstanding Professor of Law at Ole Miss. In 1982, he received the prestigious campuswide outstanding teacher award.

The colors of the School of Law's banner include purple, the color used on academic regalia in law; gold and silver for the value of precious metals; and white to represent the purity within the profession. The design incorporates the universal symbol of law, the scales of justice; the columns represent stability and tradition; and the shield represents law as the protector of the people.

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

The University of Mississippi has its roots in the College of Liberal Arts. In 1848, when Ole Miss first opened its doors to students, its faculty was four professors who taught the Liberal Arts. Offering a broad and comprehensive course of study, including most areas of knowledge in the humanities, the fine arts, and the biological, physical, and social sciences, the College of Liberal Arts is the backbone of academics at the University.

Opportunities for students within the College are boundless. Over thirty fields of study can be explored for Bachelors of Arts degrees. Students seeking a general education may acquire intellectual and civic competition; lay the broad foundation needed for specialized training in law, medicine, theology, and other professional fields; and prepare themselves for advanced study, research, and teaching in the humanities, fine arts, and sciences.

Comprised of accredited departments and outstanding faculty, the College of Liberal Arts maintains a legacy of education perfected over 150 years.

Following a contest open to students, faculty, and the College of Liberal Arts family, a banner design for the College was selected. The central image of Jason Verlangieri's winning design combines a mortarboard and the Lyceum's Greek columns above 1848, the year in which studies in the humanities and the sciences were first offered to students on the Oxford campus.

SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

The banner for the School of Pharmacy features the Rx symbol and a mortar and pestle, items which have been identified with the profession now known as pharmacy since antiquity. The portico and columns surrounding these symbols represent the University and academic environment of the School.

The School of Pharmacy, established in 1908, is recognized among the finest pharmacy education institutions in the country. With world class programs in natural products, chemistry, and pharmaceutical marketing, the school has established an outstanding record of achievement in teaching, research, service, and patient care.

Professional program students prepare for challenging careers as practitioners in therapeutics management, patient counseling, and medication utilization evaluation. Pharmacists practice in various specialty environments. In addition to traditional pharmacy practice environments, graduates find opportunities in various sectors of the pharmaceutical industry, governmental agencies, and academia. Pharmacy offers diverse career opportunities in science research, management, marketing, administration, teaching, service, and patient care.

The School of Pharmacy is accredited by the American Council of Pharmaceutical Education and holds membership in the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy.

Law School Commencement Dean Westerfield is shown here with speaker L.E. "Sandy" Sams, Jr., president of the Mississippi Bar Association, law graduate John A. Crawford, and Chancellor Robert Khayat at Law School commencement for the Spring of 1996.

The sudden passing of Dr. Louis Westerfield in August of 1996 has left an enormous void at the University of Mississippi. Seldom do leaders like Dr. Westerfield emerge . . . leaders who are inspired by adversity and driven from the soul.

Dean Westerfield was no stranger to Ole Miss when he was hired as Law Dean in 1994, the first African-American to ever hold that post. He had been teaching in Oxford for several summers prior to his appointment as Dean, and already the Ole Miss community could sense the power of Dean Westerfield's leadership, which he had utilized in positions both at Southern University and Loyola University in New Orleans.

"Never Never doubt that our housing projects, our inner city schools, and our country shacks are filled with good people who, if given the opportunity, can help make this a better world for all of us."

Dean Westerfield

Honored by students and faculty alike, Dr. Westerfield was an inspiration to many. In 1994, members of the American Bar Association's law student division's 5th and 13th Circuits created the "Louis Westerfield Award for the Promotion of Diversity and Excellence in Legal Education," and further honored the Ole Miss dean as first recipient of the award. He was one of twenty-eight men featured in Men of Courage II. Dr. Westerfield was profiled in Ebony magazine in 1995 and has received honorary Doctorates of Law from Southern University, Dillard University, and Tougaloo.

During Dr. Westerfield's tenure as Dean, diversity increased in the Law School student body, collections increased, as did various opportunities for students. But he will be missed in Oxford not only because of his accomplishments as Dean, but because his life reflected the determination which made him a revolutionary in his profession and at this University.

The University of Mississippi distinguishes itself not only as one of the most beautiful universities but also as one of the most tradition-rich universities in the South. This prestige is made possible for many reasons, but none seems more prevalent than the students that fill the classrooms and guide the organizations. To this end, we must recognize a group of students who have set themselves apart from the rest - a group of students whose accomplishments have been noted by their peers and whose accolades have earned them both honor and distinction. In the following pages you will find these outstanding individuals who brought honor and prestige not only to themselves but to their peers as well. Be it through acts of heroism, student elections, or faculty selection, each of the students in the following section has been recognized as the best at Ole Miss. It is the students who make The University of Mississippi distinct, and these are the students who were recognized in 1996-1997. May their fine example be an inspiration to their peers on the possibilities for excellence at Ole Miss.

National Ranking: No. 15

The University of Mississippi's dance team, the Rebelettes, distinguished itself as one of the best teams in the nation by finishing number 15 at the Universal Dance Association National Competition.

A yearly event held in Orlando, Florida, the competition features the most talented squads in the country and represents the highest level of achievement for its participants. To be invited to the UDA competition, squads must submit a taped recording of their 2 1/2 minute routine. From there, the squads are given bids based upon their ranking from the tapes. Approximately 75 squads vied for the 25 available slots in the competition. Once the squads arrived in Orlando, all previous rankings were discarded and each team started with a fresh slate.

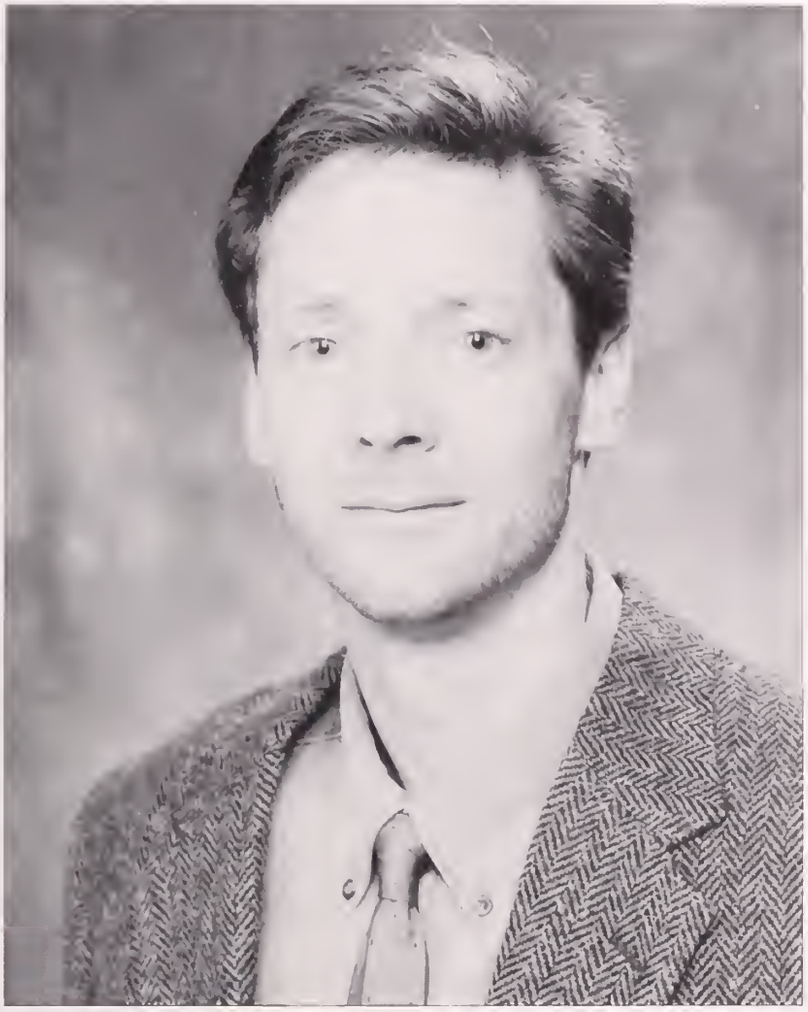

Although the competition required much personal sacrifice, the Rebelettes were able to persevere and achieve recognition as one of the top dance teams in the nation.

Outstanding Teacher

1996 Elsie M. Hood Recipient

Dr. Ken Sufka

 Assistant Professor of Psychology and Pharmacology

 Honorary member, Golden Key National Honor Society

 Director, Graduate Program in Experimental Psychology

 Director of Honors' College Search committee

 Faculty Advisor, Ole Miss Habitat for Humanity

Above: Dr. Ken Sufka has been named to the prestigious Elise M. Hood Outstanding Teacher Award.

When considering the "distinct" people that can be found at Ole Miss, there are none that stand out more than the faculty who spend so much time teaching and inspiring the students who grace the pages of this section.

One of the outstanding faculty members here is Dr. Kenneth Sufka, an assistant professor of psychology and pharmacology. Dr. Sufka has accomplished quite a lot in his four years at Ole Miss. Recently he was awarded the prestigious Elise M. Hood Outstanding Teacher Award. This campus-wide award is to honor superior classroom teaching and is based on the nominations of students, alumni, and faculty.

Dr. Sufka has long been a favorite among the students he teaches. His enthusiasm for the subjects he presents in lecture draws students in and encourages true appreciation and understanding of the topic, not just short term memorization. Using colorful tranparencies, step by step presentations, and an occasional borrowed brain in a jar, Dr Sufka makes an effort to pull the students in to help them learn. These efforts are obviously recognized and appreciated making Sufka more than an on campus favorite.

His balanced look at school and participation offer inspiration for any Ole Miss student to distinguish themselves.

Colonel Reb & Miss Ole Miss

Moss Melton & Nikki Duncan

Miss Ole Miss
Nikki Duncan

Nikki Duncan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Duncan of Jackson, is our 1996 Miss Ole Miss.

As a pre-med major, Nikki has been involved in the Phi Kappa Phi and Golden Key honor societies. While at Ole Miss, Moss, an accountancy major, has been selected to Who's Who, the Honors Program, and the Order of Omega. He was initiated into the Phi Kappa Phi, Beta Gamma Sigma, Phi Eta Sigma, and Alpha Lambda Delta honoraries.

As a member of the ASB, Moss was involved with the University Committee on Refunds.

Moss volunteered as a counselor at Camp Rainbow, an affiliate of the American Cancer Society.

In his fraternity, Phi Delta Theta, Moss held the office of president.

Ole Miss 1996 Favorites

The University of Mississippi is marked by students who go beyond requirements and expectations to reach levels of excellence in their respective fields.

It is impossible to recognize each person who makes a mark on the Ole Miss campus, an effort to honor the most prominent of our students is made through honors such as Hall of Fame, Who's Who, and Ole Miss Favorites.

While Hall of Fame and Who's Who are selected by a panel of administrators, instructors, and student leaders, Ole Miss Favorites are elected by the student body annually in the fall general elections.

The Ole Miss Favorites represent the student body's choice of their most respected peers. To be selected to this group is thus a very high honor, and we congratulate this year's recipients.

McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College

Ole Miss alumns James L. Barksdale and wife Sally McDonnell Barksdale recently gave $5.4 million dollars to the University of Mississippi in order to establish the McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College. Barksdale is Netscape president and chief executive officer. The endowment includes provisions for an Honors College building open 24 hours a day that includes five multimedia classrooms, computer labs, study rooms, and lounges as well as study abroad opportunities and two special scholarship opportunities available only to students of the Honors College: four Barksdale Scholarships valued at $6,000 per year (limited to Mississippi residents) and five Honors Schoarships valued at $2,000 per year (available to all applicants).

The honors curriculum includes one core course taken each semester through the spring semester of the sophomore year. In addition, sophomores, juniors, and seniors are required to perform 20 hours annually of public service. These courses will be designated on student transcripts by a special "H" to indicate satisfactory completion of each course. Those students who fulfill all Honors College requirements will receive special recognition at graduation and also special distinction on their diplomas.

Honors College students are selected based on "evidence of distinguised academic performance, significant achievement in scholastic and extracurricular activities, and the promise of substantial contribution to the University community throughout their college careers." The 1996 entering class had an average ACT score of 29 and a high school grade point average of 3.85. Included in the 1996 class are 26 valedictorians and salutatorians and also 21 National Merit Finalists and Semifinalists.

History of the Honors Program

The Faulker Scholars Program (also known as the University Scholars Program) began in 1953 until a committee was asked in 1980 to restructure and enlarge the program. Thus, the Honors Program was born in 1981.

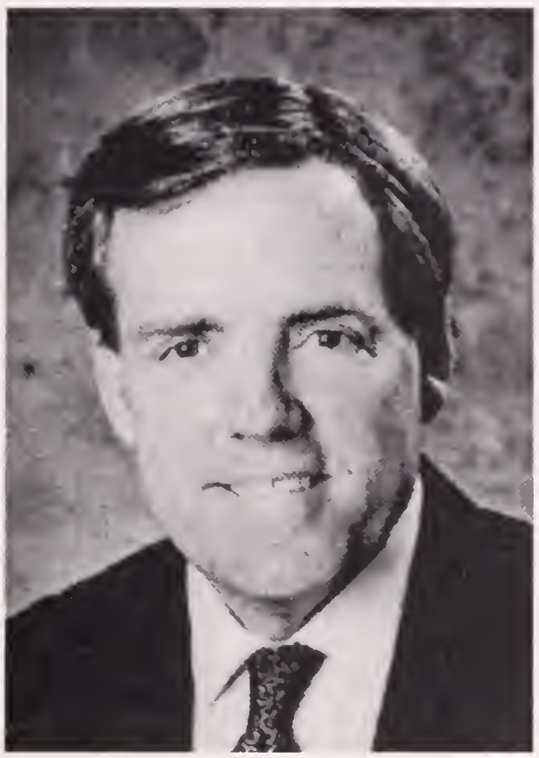

Although achievement scores and grade point averages are important, they are not the only measurements by which an Honors Student is judged. The ideal Honors Program student possesses "intellectual curiosity, mental independence, and honest enthusiasm for work with or outside his or her discipline. He or she should be an active rather than a passive student, pursuing insight rather than learning only that which he or she must. . . . An ideal graduate of the Honors Program is one who has explored realms beyond the mere requirements of the degree, nourishing the life-long process of what in German is called Bildung--the intellectual, emotional, and moral shaping of the total self."

The Honors Code:

"As an Honors student, I pledge to observe the highest standard of honesty and to expect the same from my peers."

Profile on James Barksdale

James Barksdale

James Barksdale received his bachelors degree from the University of Mississippi in 1965. Mr. Barksdale spent twleve years with Federal Express Corporation of Memphis, and from 1979 to 1983 he served as Chief Information Officer whose duties included overseeing "the development and implementation of the company's world renowned customer service and package tracking systems." In 1983, he became executive vice president and chief operating officer.

Under his leadership as executive vice president and chief operating officer, the company expanded from $1 billion to $7.7 billion in revenues and included operations in 135 countries. As a result of his direction, Federal Express became the first service company to receive the Malcolm Baldridge National Quality Award.

Mr. Barksdale next served as president and CEO of McCaw cellular Communications from January of 1992 until the merger of AT&T and McCaw Cellular Communications, Inc. when he then served as CEO of AT&T Wireless Services.

Mr. and Mrs. Barksdale's endowment of $5.4 million for the purpose of establishing an Honors College is a crucial element in the University of Mississippi's pursuit of a Phi Beta Kappa chapter on campus through its significant potential to increase the number of enrolled high-ability students.

THE CHUCKY MULLINS COURAGE AWARD

The Roy Lee "Chucky" Mullins Courage Award, established in 1990 by Phi Beta Sigma, is given each year to an outstanding Ole Miss defensive player. This year's recipient, Nate Wayne, has earned the honor of wearing the late Mullins' jersey No. 38 for the 1997 season. Wayne, who led the Rebels in tackles in 1996 from his middle linebacker position, received the award at the Seventh Annual Chucky Mullins Courage Award Banquet.

" I promise that I will never quit," said Wayne referring to Mullins' frequent encouraging statement. 'I will wear this jersey with honor in memory of Chucky Mullins."

TRUMAN SCHOLAR

Jason Blazakis

The Truman Scholarship Award, a nation- wide award given to Political Science majors, signifies the highest level of academic achievement. This Scholarship Foundation, established by Congress in 1975 to honor our thirty- third President, awards $30,000 merit- based scholarships to some premier graduate institutions. This year the University of Mississippi is proud to boast one of its students as a recipient.

Jason Blazakis, a junior from Phillipsburg, NJ., has achieved successes in all areas of campus life. He has served on the ASB as a senator and a Cabinet member; he has been selected to Phi Kappa Phi, Golden Key, ODK, Gamma Beta Phi, Phi Eta Sigma, and he has received both the Chancellor's and the Phi Kappa Phi Scholarship Awards. As a well rounded student and an excellent Scholar, Jason represents excellence at Ole Miss.

Minority Leaders Fellowship Program

Kenneth Grigsby

Ole Miss senior Kenneth Grigsby was selected to participate in the Washington Center's Minority Leaders Fellowship Program. Grigsby is one of fifteen select students from across the country to be recognized with this prestigious honor. The program provides leadership opportunities for minority students who are commited to serve and make a difference locally, nationally, and internationally. Kenneth, who is a Political Science major and was named to the Ole Miss student Hall of Fame, is enrolled in the program via a scholarship from the selected students' universities.

"My passion is politics, and this program will enhance my advocacy skills," the Beldon native said. "This is not only a chance for me to voice my concerns but also analyze them and find effective and strategic ways to implement change." Benefiting from the diversity of the students involved, Kenneth was given a unique opportunity to see what other people are going through in other parts of the country. Grigsby, who plans to pursue a joint degree in law and campaign management after his August graduation, reflects on his involvement on the Oxford campus as a highlight of his college career - a highlight that taught him a lot about life and working with others.

"My Passion is Politics, and this program will enhance my advocacy skills. This is not only a chance for me to voice my concerns but also analyze them."

"I had to take the initiative and come out of my comfort zone," he said. "I don't know how much I contributed to the Ole Miss community, but I do know that it greatly contributed to me. The opportunity to be so involved and meet so many people broadened my perspective." The program has shown him that he is prepared to tackle issues as towering as racial struggles.

Outstanding Members of the Ole Miss Student Media Department

The student media at the University of Mississippi remains as one of the most competitive and recognized groups in the nation. Whether it be the Daily Mississippian, Rebel Radio, Channel 12 Newswatch, or the Ole Miss Yearbook, the staff and leaders of these media groups provide the University with incomparable service. To this end, we must recognize and applaud those who have provided the backbone and leadership necessary to maintain such high standards. Here are some of those students who have donated both their time and their diligence in order to make the Student Media Department the best it can be.

Ole Miss students come from all over the United States and the World. Students from different cultural and religious backgrounds come together on campus. Because of Ole Miss's diverse student body, Oxford is a hip little town in Mississippi. Students enjoy grovin' on football game weekends, listening to bands at Larry's, no class when there's snow and ice, capuccinos, parties, and chicken on a stick. Who ever thought so many people would eat food from a gas station? Only at Ole Miss. Rebels have majors from just about any field of study. Majors range from art to chemistry Spanish to broadcast journalism, or from education to the ever popular pre-law. Ole Miss is the perfect size for a university. Students learn a great deal from one on one instruction with professors because classes are never too big. Ole Miss is large enough so students don't grow tired of seeing the same old people, but is small enough to make everyone feel at home and belong here. Graduates who came before us have proved when you leave Ole Miss you are going somewhere, and when you get there you are well prepared.

Classes

Freshmen: Looking into the face of tradition

Story by Kim Hale

* All freshmen are required to live on campus.

* Freshmen dorms are the Martin-Stockard Towers, Brown, Deaton, Stewart, and Garland- Hedleston-Mayes.

* All freshmen are required to take University Studies 101.

* There are 903 women and 753 men out of the class of 2000 living on campus.

When freshmen first step on to the campus of the University of Mississippi many lasting images are implanted into their minds. From those first impressions what kind of lasting memories form? The Rebel flag, "Dixie", and rush are controversial topics forever changing in the minds of students and affecting their ways of life. How does the class of 2000 feel about these traditions and their effects on Ole Miss?

The Rebel flag is one of the hottest topics on campus. For years, the debate over the flag has sparked emotions from racism to tradition in students. The University has ceased to sell or condone the Rebel flag in hopes to deter its use. The Battle M was the university's initial attempt to end the waving of the stars and bars, now the university has changed the battle flag to a royal blue flag, with a big red "M", and Ole Miss across the bottom. Yet, many students have stuck with tradition and choose to wave the Rebel flag.

Chris Simmons, a biology major from Oxford, said, "Some people still think it's racist, but a lot of people are just caught up in traditions. That's all they think about. You can't tell if someone is racist simply by whether they wave a flag. They don't see it as racist. I don't think changing the flag will help because people will still hang on to the other. It has been here for so long that change this quick will not make a difference."

Yet another controversial topic is the playing of "Dixie". Whether or not to play the song presents problems all over the South, not just at Ole Miss. In Georgia, for example, the band cannot play "Dixie". But, here at Ole Miss on game day, the band continues to play it proudly. Band member Stacey Couvillion, an Oceanography major from Mandeville, Louisiana, said, "'Dixie' is the school's theme song, so it is hard to immediately get rid of something that has been here so long."

Another change facing many students on the Ole Miss campus is the changing of rush. While not so controversial a topic as the Rebel flag and "Dixie", this does cause concern for many of the students involved in the Greek system. Sara Langewisch, a business major from Dallas, Texas said, "Rush being in October will probably hurt because it will be around mid-term time. This may cause more stress for Rushees and all of the other people involved." Rush has traditionally been the week before classes started; however, in the fall of 1995, it took place during the first week of class. This change must have proved unsuccessful because it was moved back to its "traditional" time before school this year.

Do freshmen think change is the way to go? Most tend to agree with Anna McFarland, a Pre-Med Biology major from Irving, Illinois. She said, "Change will take place; we just have to adjust. But, traditions are traditions for a reason. Some people will always go with tradition while others will explore the unknown in hopes that this will make the future better." Changing traditions — it may take a while but it will probably be worth it.

Sophomores: Can Ole Miss be a truly academic school?

Story by Skye Sturlese

Think back to your senior year in high school. So many important decisions, so much unwanted and unneeded pressures, life seems to be going in all different directions and on top of that you have to decide on what college to attend. It's probably one of the biggest decisions you ever made. Think what qualities you looked for in a university — you may have visited a few campuses, attended their college days, met with faculty and advisors, and maybe even stayed overnight in the dorms. But besides the great visit, what really influenced your college choice? Was it the great academic reputation of the school or the prospect that the school was reputable for a satisfying an abundant social life?

Ole Miss sophomores have various opinions on whether this university is viewed as a "party school" or if we are viewed as a strong academic institution. Toria Miller, a chemistry major from Hernando, said she feels Ole Miss is an excellent academic institution, with a high social life. "I came to Ole Miss for the outstanding medical program. The social life can get in the way if you let it , but my mind was made up to not let it interfere with my studies. I am sure there are many students who come to Ole Miss strictly for the social life, but they are the ones who will not make it past the first semester" Miller said.

Other Ole Miss sophomores have different opinions than Miller. David Baker, a marketing major from Senatobia , said " Ole Miss has a big emphasis on social life and that was a major factor in my decision. But it is a lot closer to home than the other universities." Unlike Miller, Baker feels the social aspect is "vital to the Ole Miss college experience."

Still other sophomores feel Ole Miss can be both academic and social. Natalie Smith, a pre-med biology major from Brookhaven, said she can have " the best of both worlds at Ole Miss. Of course everybody in high school envies the Ole Miss college life and that was a huge part of my decision to come here", said Smith, " but I also felt it would be in my best interest to study will I am here. I want to be a doctor more than anything and I feel I am getting the best of both sides, I manage my time get to party and make good grades."

Opinion is divided among sophomores whether they think Ole Miss is an academic or social institution. Still sophomores seem to agree that the social aspect is fun but when it comes to the books, academics plays a bigger role in their lives than the social life. "I get to party and make the grades, as long as I manage all of my time correctly, it is the best of both worlds," Smith said.

Left – Forget studying, let's play. The Grove is one of Ole Miss' special places where people come to study or play.

Juniors: What do you want to do before graduation?

Story by Kate Curtis

Freshmen and Sophomores were asked what they want to do before they graduate from Ole Miss — most of the responses they gave were, "I have absolutely no idea!" On the other hand, the only thing seniors had to say was, "I'll do anything to graduate in May!"

Juniors who were asked what they wanted to do before graduation seemed to already have a pretty good idea of what they wanted to achieve or accomplish.

Each junior had something different to say. Jayne Halterman, a Fashion Merchandising major from Columbus, MO, said she wanted to study abroad in Italy because it contained so much fascinating history.

Katie Walsh, an Education major from Lexington, KY, stated she would also like to go to Italy or Paris, not to study but just to visit. She did not hesitate to add, "Besides the traveling part, I would love an engagement ring!"

Many of the Business, Political Science, and Management majors had responses like Angie Milton. She said her ideal summer or semester would be get an internship to work in Washington, D.C.

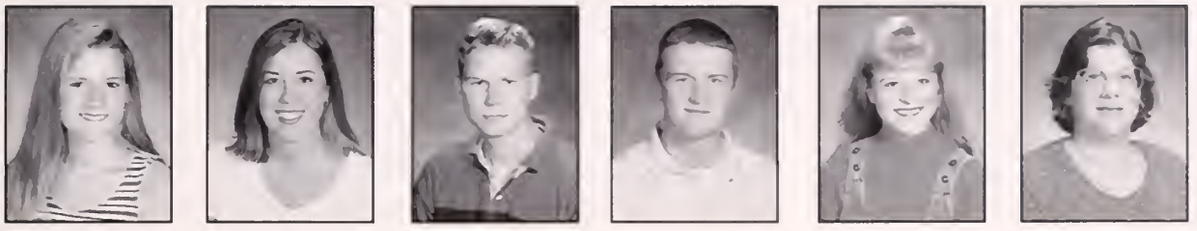

Milton, a Management major from Booneville, said, "that most of the people she knew who have gone said it was a great experience and lots of fun!"

Whether it is making those "ideal" grades, traveling, or simply taking the semester off — most people, especially Juniors, have good ideas and goals about what they want to accomplish before the time when all must start settling down and work — graduation. Whatever goals one has, hopefully everyone will have the opportunity to fulfill them all.

Coming full circle--What have you not done that you would like to do to come full circle before graduating from Ole Miss?

Juniors plan for the future

With just over a year left before graduation, members of the junior class at Ole Miss are forced to make important decisions about their futures.

Gone are the days of core curriculum classes and changes of majors. The junior year is typically the time when course loads accelerate, and most classes pertain to the student's major. Many students find that they are forced to spend more time studying than ever before.

Advisers which might have been contacted only for minimal assistance in previous years become vital to juniors planning for graduation.

"Advisers are key in guiding you through all the required courses," junior Kevin Brooks said, " I wouldn't know what to take to graduate without my adviser."

Many juniors begin career searches by sending resumes to potential employers and seeking internships in their field of study.

The university offers assistance to juniors in search of jobs through the Career Center in the Lyceum

The Graduate School:

Preparing students for tommorow

Story by Amanda McClure

The graduate school at the University of Mississippi is a school where students may go beyond the four-year bachelor's degree education. They may choose to continue their education another year and receive a master's degree. Many students even go beyond a master degree and complete three years of graduate school to receive the highest degree, a Ph.D. The students of the graduate school at Ole Miss have intentions of furthering their education that will help their marketability in the job world. How do graduate students think they will be more successful in the job world?

Gina Deangelis, a graduate student working on her master's degree in European History believes the University of Mississippi is one of the best schools; she thinks that graduate students become more well-rounded and individualized.

"Here at Ole Miss, I'm allowed to pursue the goals that I want to achieve," Deangelis said. "They're not going to tell you what they want you to do; you have to be motivated on your own."

In some fields, the school stresses to the students not to stop their education after receiving a bachelor's degree. In order for the student to have a more successful career and more door's opened, they must go on to get their master's degree or higher. Accounting is a good example because various students wish to become certified public accountants, which means they must take and pass the CPA exam. But, before they are allowed to take the exam they must have a master's degree.

Richard Hodum, graduate student in accounting, is working towards becoming a CPA.

"It's so much more competitive than just a bachelor's degree," he said.

Many students surpass a five-year college education and aim for their Ph.D. This degree is well-known for its predominant stature.

"I think if someone intends to teach at a college level, they must go beyond a bachelor's degree," John Padgett, Ph.D. candidate in English, said. Padgett is studying Southern Literature, with his main focus on William Faulkner.

"Ole Miss is renowned for its Southern literature, and what could be a better place to study it than in William Faulkner's hometown," he said.

A day at Ole Miss

Roll after roll of film went into the hands of our photographers. With each cartridge went the hope that even one of the images gathered would capture an honest glimpse of the vitality of Ole Miss.

What are the definitive elements of a student's life at The University of Mississippi?

We walk to class amidst towering hardwoods still inhabited by a sizeable population of sociable squirrels. The climate is mild, and sunny days are commonplace.

Teachers know our names. Most classes are small enough to make one-on-one contact between teachers and students a reality.

Our buildings look like picture postcards. Ventress, Barnard, the Lyceum--many campus buildings are timeless monuments to the university's rich history.

For quiet time we retreat to the Grove, a meadowy area at the heart of campus strewn with picnic tables and park benches.

Our campus is at the heart of Faulkner's Yoknapatawpha County. Oxford native and Nobel Prize winning author William Faulkner used this name for Lafayette County, the setting for many of his works. The literary influence of Faulkner and other area writers is still apparent in Oxford and especially at Ole Miss.

The Grove still overflows on football game days, and "hotty toddy" is sure to be heard. Athletics at Ole Miss are alive and well, with women's and nontraditional sports now sharing the devotion of dedicated Rebel fans.

We are reaching toward a promising tomorrow with the enthusiasm that characterizes Ole Miss. Each day progress is being made in the university's efforts for self-improvement, be it through construction or communication.

The University of Mississippi is a warm home for people from all walks of life and every corner of the world.

The following pages are a showcase of what we believe are our photographers' finest images of the university. Our wish is that they give a little insight on how it actually feels to spend a day at Ole Miss.

-Amy Hall

* Males make up 3,852 of the the student body. Females comprimse the majority with 4,265 on campus.

* Enrollment has risen on the campus from 7,946.

* Last year females made up 4,151 of the student body and males made up 3,795.

USA

College life is not only about days filled with classes and evenings of cramming for tests. University life also involves encountering different circumstances, meeting new people, and experiencing an awakening that will ideally impact the student long after graduation day. There are over 200 organizations on campus that offer students opportunities to volunteer through community services, obtain valuable work experience, and enjoy activities which interest them. The university will benefit from the students' involvement, as well, as the key to the success of any institution is the input of its members. Some of these organizations are campus wide, some nation wide, but they all provide a group atmosphere for students to become a part of during their time at Ole Miss. Organizations are what help students to become more than a face in a sea of 10,000 other faces. They are the uniting factor that brings individuals together and creates a common thread that all students can appreciate. Many of the group experiences, leadership opportunities, and people skills learned in these college organizations will go with the student into the "real world" and will be influential long after their days at The University of Mississippi are over.

Organizations

The Associated Student Body

* The Associated Student Body deals with matters of student affairs, perpetuates the traditions of The University of Mississippi,promotes the best of understanding between faculty and students, and supervises all student activity so that it may be conducted for the best interest of the student body as a whole.

* The ASB attempts to allow the maximum personal, social, and political development of all students.

* The organization of ASB is patterned after that of our own national government, with executive branch overseen by the ASB president, legislative branch overseen by the ASB vice-president, and judicial branch overseen by the ASB judicial council chairman.

ASB President
Hart Rogers

Hart is an English/Pre-Med major from Tupelo, Mississippi, and has served on the campus senate and has chaired several ASB commitees in the past. His tasks as ASB president include all the responsibilities involved in oveseeing the executive branch. His special duties include the appointment of the presidential cabinet and the appointments of any and all special task forces. Hart served as president of Lambda Sigma, Phi Eta Sigma, and as an officer in Sigma Chi fraternity.

Vice-President
Jenni Risher

The 1997 ASB vice-president Jenny Risher is a psycholgy major from Brandon, Mississippi. As vice-president, she is charged with the responsibiity of presiding over the student body senate, which is the law-making body of the ASB and is comprised of 47 senators from various posts both on and off campus. Jenni has served as vice-president of rush for Panhellenic and public relations chairman for her sorority and is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Order of Omega and Golden Key Honor Society.

Secretary
Merrill King

Merrill King, a senior psychology major from Oxford, Mississippi is the Associated Student Body secretary. Merrill served two years on the Student Body Cabinet as elections commissioner. As secretary, she is responsible for running the Student Body office and must be available to aid all ASB officer and Cabinet members in any clerical work needed. This summer she was an intern at the White House. Merrill is a member of Mortar Board, ODK, Lambda Sigma, and Delta Gamma sorority.

Treasurer
Jana Davis

This year's Associated Student Body treasurer is Jana Davis, a senior English major from new Madrid, Missouri. As treasurer, she allocates all finances for ASB organizations and special interest groups for the University ofMississippi. In September, she drafts a budget. She is also responsible for keeping accurate records of the finances of each department as well as granting order forms for purchasing. Jana has served as a senator, on various ASB committees, Student Alumni Council, Summer Orientation Leader, and an Ambassador. Jana is a member of Sigma Tau Delta and Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Judicial Chairman
Ginger Dunnam

Ginger Dunnam is this year's Associated Student Body judicial council chairman. She is a senior Chemical Engineering/Pre-med major from Pascagoula, Mississippi. Ginger was an associate member of the Student Judicial Council before serving in the position as chairman. In her capacity as chairman, she is responsible for conducting all student judicial hearings and serves as a student on the Administrative Disciplinary Committee. Ginger has also been active as state-wide chairman of Mississippi College Republicans, vice-president of the School of Engineering and a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

ASB Cabinet

* The ASB Cabinet consists of 21 students appointed by the ASB President and the 4 ASB officers.

* The Cabinet comprises the Executive Branch of the ASB

* Meets weekly to discuss various activities that are taking place within members' departments.

ASB Cabinet members: Hart Rogers, president; Jenni Risher, vice-president; Jana Davis, treasurer; Merrill King, secretary; Michael McGehee, attorney general; John Jones, chief of staff; Bill Allen, executive assistant; Denny Bubrig, executive assistant; Myles Russell, executive liaison; Michael Shemper, press secretary ; Jason Blazakis, director of academic affairs; Nicola Makey, director of alumni affairs; Kenneth Grigsby, director of campus affairs; Brett Bagley, director of communications; Angie Milton, director of public relations; Mary Ellen Mitchell, director of student development; Jay Brown, director of student development; Amalee Jayasinghe, director of student housing; Monique Brown, director of student life; Macey Fisher, director of student services; Thomas Elfert, director of university relations; Casey Pedersen, elections commissioner; Melissa Windham, ASB/SPB liaison.

Judicial Council

* The University of Mississippi's Student Judicial Council is the highest tribunal in the Associated Student Body, having jurisdiction over all student reviews, as well as all matters relative to the interpretation of the M Book and the ASB Constitution, all ASB elections, and any and all laws or resolutions duly passed by the campus senate.

ASB Senate

-Philip LaMoreaux

* The ASB Senate is comprised of student representatives from districts both on and off campus.

* It serves as the lawmaking body of the ASB and gives students the opportunity to change various aspects of the University of Mississippi through legislation drafted by the Senators.

Senate Executive Council

-Philip LaMoreaux

ASB Executive Council Members: Ashlye Stewart, ASB legislation monitor; Mark Eubanks, ASB special assistant; Lesley Hardy, ASB special assistant; Jill Medely, ASB Senate clerk; April Canup, ASB parlimentarian; Fletcher Whitwell, ASB public relations chairman.

* The Executive Council is a six member team whose purpose is to facilitate and enhance the productivity of the ASB Senate meetings.

Department of Academic Affairs

* The Department of Academic Affairs represents students on the Academic Council and search comittees, and publishes teacher evaluations, and reports to the Senate Academic Affairs Committee once a semester.

-Philip LaMoreaux

ASB Director of Academic Affairs
Jason Blazakis

Department of Student Housing

* The Director of Student Housing acts as a link between the ASB and Residence Hall Council and helps convey the wants and needs of the students living in the dorms to the University's Housing Director.

* Each April, the Department publishes a pamphlet detailing all of the off campus living that Oxford offers.

ASB Director of Student Housing
Amalee Jayasinghe

Department of Alumni Relations

ASB Director of Alumni Relations
Nicola Makey

* This department's main objective is to raise money for the University.

* The directors work closely with the University Development Committee and the Alumni Relations Committee on Parent's Fund, Letter Campaigns, Door to Door Cam-paigns, and Phone-a-thons.

Department of Athletic Relations

-Ashley Ray

ASB Director of Athletic Relations
Mona Elsohly

* The Department of Athletic Relations is a direct link between the student body and the athletic department.

* The Director oversees the department which is composed of several committees, each dealing with a specific sport and ensures that each sport is well-publicized both on and off campus.

Department of Student Development

* The Department of Student Development helps students maintain physical, social, and intellectual fitness.

* The Department's goals include developing a healthy, well-balanced lifestyle, advising students on health issues, and to providing both on and off campus employment to students.

ASB Director of Student Development

* The Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps (NROTC) unit was established at Ole Miss to train Ole Miss students for future careers as officers in the naval service.

* NROTC students have excellent opportunities for scholarships and when commissioned upon graduation, serve a minimum of four years active duty in the Navy or Marine Corps.

* There are several programs available for earning a commission in the Navy or Marine Corps. * Students may join the program as late as their sophomore year.

Phi Kappa Phi

* The National Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi was originated by a group of students who felt the need to recognize scholarship in all disciplines.

* The society was soon transformed into national organization by action of a committee composed of the presidents of The University of Maine, The University of Tennessee, and Pennsylvania State College.

* The University of Mississippi Chapter was chartered in May 1959 as the 77th chapter of Phi Kappa Phi.

* Today, there are approximately 250 chapters in the 50 states, and Puerto Rico.

The University of Mississippi, with its diverse student body, creates an atmosphere where students grow and learn. On any given day, there are a multitude of activities and events going on at various spots on campus. Students can find many ways to celebrate the life of the mind. This celebration of the life of the mind goes beyond classes and into ideas. For example, going to a play, a religious meeting, a party, or just sitting around discussing the events of the day with friends are all ways to encourage new ideas and expand thinking. The list could go on forever, but you get the picture--Ole Miss offers plenty of opportunities for any student. As an Ole Miss student the more involved you become, the more you make this university a better place to be. Ole Miss is striving to unite for tomorrow. We are joining forces racially, culturally, religiously, and as friends to make this campus the best it can possibly be. Look in the Daily Mississippian and find some way to enjoy campus life. Our college days will be gone all too soon, and then we will not wish to look upon the tarnished memories of our apathetic ways. Rather, let us involve ourselves not only in the improvement of ourselves, but also in the betterment of our fellow students, Ole Miss, and the Oxford community.

Starting from the Beginning

Story by Andrea Furr

> Life was once again a comfortable routine of classes and social events...

As I bent over to pick up one of the many large boxes, I heard footsteps from behind. I turned to see a girl wearing a t-shirt, her hair pulled up in a pony-tail--seemingly the standard outfit for moving day. "Can I carry one of those boxes?" she asked with a sheepish grin and outstretched hand. I welcomed her assistance and tried to hide the tremor that was making its way up my throat.

We walked up countless flights of stairs with my parents, who were also loaded with boxes and slightly trailing behind. When we reached the top of the stairs, we were all breathless as we searched for my room number. Finally, Room 611 was found, and my mother slipped the key into the lock and threw open the door. My new concrete-walled home! I felt my heart drop to my feet and my stomach turn a cartwheel.

I think that my first day was typical of any freshman's first day with all the stress of making new friends and adjusting to dorm life. The new faces all seemed distant, and the general thought was that "I am the only person who feels lonely and afraid." Not until recently did I realize that this was not so.

My second week on the Ole Miss campus was the week of rush and I had never seen so many smiling faces in my whole life. There were friends to be made everywhere on campus: church, sorority, class. Life was once again a comfortable routine of classes and social events; the 12' by 15' room even became "home sweet home."

Just as I was gathering my heavy load of books, Kathy appeared in the doorway with her usual question, "Can I carry anything?"

"No thanks," I said, and we headed off to classes. This morning, however, as we walked through the grove, I gave special notice to the towering oak trees which now seem to represent the promises of friends and fun that Ole Miss held for me and the goals that I have begun to work toward.

Making a Difference

Story by Chris Cave

The Associated Student Body. It means many different things to many different people. However, it is most widely recognized as the governing body of the students on the Ole Miss campus. Perry Moulds, a sophomore from Gulfport, Mississippi, described the ASB as the student's voice when he said, "Just as in local and national elections, the ASB elections are a student's chance to speak out."

Formed in structure much like the United States government, the ASB also includes a campus Senate made up of students representing all factions of campus as well as off-campus ideals.

The ASB lends itself to many different aspects of campus life. From issues such as the possibility of a fall break, to academic standards revisions like a "super-drop", to the promotion of diversity on campus. The ASB tackles student-oriented issues.

Joey Grisham, a senior from Memphis, Tennessee, commented on the representational role the ASB must take pertaining to students. Grisham said, "The sole purpose of the ASB is to represent each and every student on campus."

The ASB holds its elections in both the Fall and Spring semesters of school. The fall elections allow students to seek positions on the ASB Senate. Positions for the Senate are based upon students' geographic living locations. The Spring elections are campus-wide and give students the opportunity to choose a President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer to serve posts for two consecutive semesters. Generally, voter turnout tends to be larger during the Spring elections.

Above all, the ASB gives Ole Miss the desire to take what they are given as students and return it a little better than when they found it. Newly elected campus Senator Emily Cartwright, a freshman from Booneville, Mississippi, said, "I felt I had good leadership qualities which would allow me to voice the opinions of dorm residents. This is also a great way to get my foot in the door doing something I really enjoy."

Whether you enjoy involvement in university government or strongly dislike it, the ASB is a proven way for students to get involved and make a positive impact on campus.

Uniting our Campus

Story by Nancy Jane Otto

In order to improve vital communication between leaders in various, high-profile organizations, a council was established for the Associate Student Body and Black Student Union presidents, yearbook and newspaper editors, Student Programming Board directors, and leaders of international and graduate student associations.

The board, which meets once a month, was the brainchild of Richard Mullendore, vice chancellor for Student Life.

According to ASB President Hart Rogers, he and Associate Dean of Students Sparky Reardon began to form the group shortly after Mullendore's first visit to the campus.

"Sparky and I got together student leaders that represented a good cross-section of campus," Rogers said. "We had a retreat at the end of the year to form the group and decide what our goals were going to be."

Included in the list of goals for the student board was to improve communication between organizations and to compile an electronic campus calendar. As the university moves forward toward the next century these goals are coming closer to being met. The board has also helped the leaders get to know one another, something that everyone involved with the program believes is a very important aid for leaders in accomplishing their organization's goals.

"We are getting to know each other in our monthly meetings," Rogers; said, "and that is very helpful in many situations. I would feel comfortable calling any of the other members to ask for the helper to come and help with interviewing faculty members and other potential employees."

Mullendore said that the board will be very beneficial in his getting an idea of how students will react to his administration's policy.

The Student Leadership Council will play an integral role in changes that Ole Miss' Student Life department will see this year. The vice chancellor said he ha o qualms about expressing his faith in the quality and perseverance of the council members.

"With the quality of the people in (SLC)," Mullendore said." I would just turn them

A Cultural Oasis

Story by Chris Baxley

With a town the size of Oxford and a university the size of Ole Miss it seems unnatural that there is so much to this little postage stamp. In rural Mississippi towns, you would be more likely to see a rodeo every other week than a travelling art exhibit. It would be perfectly permissible to get your musical education from a juke box playing truck stop classics as opposed to going to hear a symphony concert on Wednesday evening. Who in their right mind would expect to find 54 restaurants (count them if you do not believe me) with meals that vary from fried catfish to New York Strip. It does not take long to figure out that this little town is nothing less than a cultural oasis in an otherwise typical small town area of the south.

The next time you go out for dinner in Oxford stop before you get in the car and look in the phone book at all the different places to eat. Whether its the Sunday jazz brunch at the Bottletree Bakery or blues night at the City Grocery, you can find plenty to enjoy about your meal other than just the food on your plate. There is nothing like the mellow droning of a blues guitar riff to help add extra quality to an already excellent meal. Everything from home-style, southern cooking to the only Lebanese cafe for miles is right here waiting for your discovery. Stop the next time you decide to settle for the old standby and spice up your life with something new for the pallet.

Music has been at the heart of this city for years. With the help of the university, Oxford has found itself blessed with plenty of musical experiences to enrich the lives of those who seek new auditory experiences. The campus has boasted shows ranging from a harp recital to an orchestra concert, giving a chance to experience truly timeless music one and all.

Pick up an Oxford paper and you will see a plethora of upcoming musical events. Just about every big name in the regional blues genre has graced a stage here in Oxford at some point in time--B.B. King, Bobby "Blue Band," Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, and the list goes on. Jazz is well represented in this town also. If pop culture suits your taste, just choose one of the local pubs that have a band playing (you may very well be seeing todays alternative garage band which will be tomorrows stadium rockers).

Feasts for the eyes? Make it a point to see the continuous exhibits going on in town. Ole Miss student art displays and the exhibits of outside artists are frequent at the University Museum. This year has seen several outstanding exhibits including the resent McCarty pottery exhibit. In addition to the exhibits on campus, you can view the ever changing exhibits at the Southside Gallery on the Square. They recently displayed the artwork of some very well known Russian artists who painted both scenes of their native country as well as some beautiful depictions of Oxford landmarks.

No matter what the cultural medium, you can experience it here in Oxford. Just relax and take your time--remember where you are.

Lights, Camera, Action!

Story by Chris Cave

Lights, camera, action!!! The Ole Miss theater department is once again burning the midnight oil to conjure a year full of performances to entertain the legion of drama fans here at Ole Miss. Making their home once again at Fulton Chapel and Bryant Hall, the Ole Miss thespians are working hard to diversify their assortment of projects so that any age can enjoy. The 1996-1997 school year will include such works as Westside Story, Orpheus Descending, and the Grand Ceremental. In spite of the elegance of the theater departments performances on stage, many play goers fail to recognize the behind the scenes work which is so instrumental. "The performance is the reward," said Katie Furlong, a sophomore from Florida. "We build our own sets and props, but we have fun working as a team, a family." Here is wishing success to our excellent theater department. Bravo!!

SPB - Better than Ever

Story by Ashly Ray

Kudzu Kings, Albeit Acoustic, Prohibition Jazz Band, Brian Barksdale, Garrison Starr, and many others. Free concerts in the Union plaza every Tuesday from noon 'til one, and of course the massive show in the Grove featuring Oxford's long-time favorite, Better Than Ezra. All of this is due to the Student Programming Board, a student-run committee here on campus that organizes fantastic, free entertainment for broke college students. Acts in the past have included 311 and No Doubt, among others. I had the privilege of interviewing Better Than Ezra when they were here in September, and it is always a comfort knowing that stars like that remember their roots.

"Oxford was always like a safe-haven," lead singer Kevin Griffin told me during our interview. "We could always do well in Baton Rouge and Oxford...it [Oxford] gave us the confidence to keep playing." Their show was the biggest of the fall semester, drawing a crowd of about 4,000.

Many attend the Union Unplugged series, mainly because of its central location (everyone hits the Union at one point during the day) and its relaxed atmosphere. A typical Tuesday afternoon scene would include students sitting under the covered steps, eating lunch, or studying for that 1:00 test; some sit on the ground and groove out, while others are merely passing through, stopping only long enough to see who is playing today.

> "Oxford was always like a safe-haven..
> -Kevin Griffin,

Hugh Acton, a junior from Byram, says, "I loved the Better Than Ezra show. I've seen them before in concert but never here; it put it on a more personal level." "Better Than Ezra was so cool," said freshman Catherine Krupa from Orlando, FL. "To see such a great band in the first place is neat, but that fact that it was free made it even better."

Many others love the Union Unplugged series, which gives local or not-so local musicians a chance to showcase their talents in a very public, relaxed atmosphere. Freshman Cindy Herbert said, "I walk through the Plaza every day about that time when the band is starting up, and I always stop and listen."

An Album of Traditions

Story by Crocker Lee

What is the Grove? To perfectly picture the Grove, try to invision an old family photo album brought our to be enjoyed by younger generations as well as to be savored by the present generation.

On one page is a couple from three generations back - still smiling and still telling old stories of the way it used to be. On the next page stands a different generation--one consisting of professionals at the peak of their careers surrounded by their college age children as well as their married children. And now to our page--a page filled with college students still attempting to find their own identity and add to this growing album. Looking past the people in the pictures, the old oak trees share their presence in all the picture. Perhaps they are the only constants in this ever changing world. The next picture shows an old rough-hewn picnic table upon which each generation has "Groved." The family quilt and wicker basket can be seen on one table as well as the slick cardboard chicken bucket. In the background of the picture you can see the reflection of the silver Candelabra of another families album. These generations are diverse, yet all are smiling as they are bound by their common love for Ole Miss and the joy of seeing old classmates. Perhaps some return because they are not ready to leave. And some return to see the promise of the future--the present.

> ...the old oak trees share their presence...

Whatever the reason--people return to the Grove--just as families often flip through the pages of their photo albums to enjoy their heritage and anticipate their future.

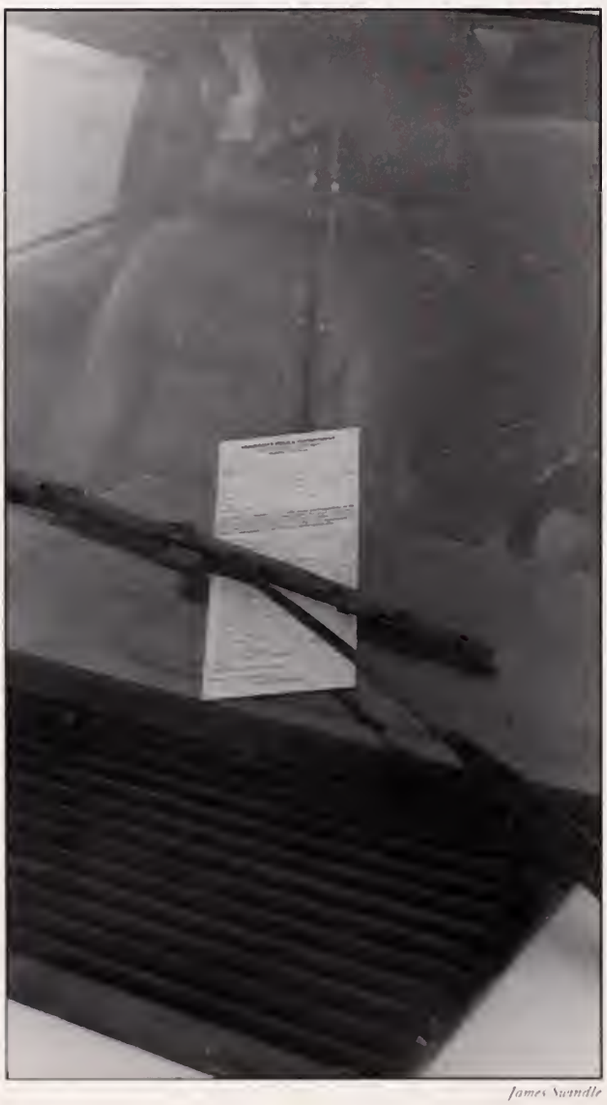

Above: Groving is defined as family and friends meeting in the Grove to eat and fellowship. This family looks like they are enjoying the sunny day in the grove.

Where Do I Park to Avoid the Ticket Man's Mark?

Story by James Swindle

Since the introduction of the model-T to the Ole Miss campus, parking has been a major concern to students. Students do not feel that there is adequate parking for the number of students that attend Ole Miss.

Jennifer Treadaway, a junior from Brandon said,"It seems that every year faculty parking areas increase, but the number of faculty members do not. This leaves students with fewer parking places."

Sophomore Summer Smith from Jackson, Tenn. agreed,"After a late night of studying or frolicking about Oxford, it is difficult to find a space to park in the dorm lots."

The parking problem escalates every year. With the increase in enrollment and the lack of parking available, students are being forced to find other modes of transportation to and from campus.

> "...I rely on my bike to get to and from campus..."
> -Nichole Caddell

Nichole Caddell, a sophomore from Naples, Fla., said "I live off campus and I rely on my bike to get me to and from campus since parking is such a problem on campus. This way I don't have to bother with trying to find a parking space."

Bikes and roller blades have become increasingly popular with students who are not willing to hassle with finding a commuter space, or those who do not care for walking. These forms of travel are also good forms of exercise. So, students can get fit while they are travelling to class.

To avoid that ticket man's mark, park in designated areas only and do not drive to class. Get up a little earlier and "take a hike" there, instead.

Above: Ha! Thought you wouldn't get caught, huh?! Students find it difficult to find a convenient commuter space, so they frequently park in faculty parking areas. Just like this student, most of the illegal parkers are ticketed.

More than $65 million in state and private monies will be pumped into the University of Mississippi's campus in renovations and construction over the next three years, creating an environment that better supports academic excellence.

"In recent years, state support and private gifts have been very, very good," said Chancellor Robert C. Khayat. "That is why we have all these projects under way. I can only hope this support will continue, gifts increase, and we become even more efficient in the management of our campus.

"For excellence to be the standard, our University must reach its full potential. That will first be reflected in the quality of the academic programs. Beyond that, it's apparent the facilities, equipment, and support systems must be in place" he said.

"The beauty of the Oxford campus has been heralded through out the country, and it's important to those of us who live and work here, as well as to alumni and visitors," said the chancellor.

However, maintaining 4 million square feet of buildings is a challenge to any budget. The national standard for repair and renovation (R&R) is $1.50 per square foot, which would require an annual budget of $6.5 million for the campus.

"We don't come close to that; all of the state's universities combined don't come close to $6.5 million annually," said Dr. Andy Mullins, special assistant to the chancellor. "Ole Miss has more and a greater variety of building projects under way because we have the oldest campus. We have a lot of R&R needs, but it is difficult to attract funds to fix pipes and roofs."

There is evidence, though, that the Mississippi Legislature is taking a serious look at the R&R needs, with its formation of the Facilities Advisory Management Committee, says Mullins. "Members of that committee visited the campus early in the fall and were very concerned with the condition of some of the older buildings.

The extensive construction projects include the renovation of the former Alpha Delta Pi sorority house for the establishment of the Honors College. The College will be named after President and CEO of Netscape, James L. Barksdale, and his wife Sally McDonnell Barksdale.

Conner Hall, the home of the Schools of Business and Accountancy, is undergoing a $22 million renovation and addition. The entire complex will contain 116,000 square feet of technologically advanced class rooms and laboratories.

The Chapel at Ole Miss is being constructed between Bondurant Hall and Paul B. Johnson Commons. The majority of the funds for the Chapel were provided by a private donor. Costing about $1.5 million, the Chapel will serve as a place of worship, weddings, campus and community activities and a variety of other things.

A 4,000 square foot structure being built near Vaught-Hemingway Stadium, will be home to the new Rebel Shop. This structure will house all ticket offices along with its usual stock of Ole Miss Merchandise.

The College of Liberal Arts will find a new home in Ventress Hall. The building constructed in 1889 to serve as the University library is undergoing a $1 million renovation

When the Old Gym receives a $7 million facelift it will be known as the Student Services Building. The structure will offer a one-stop area for students to pay tuition and fees, inquire about financial aid, obtain career counseling, and take advantage of other services.

The oldest building on campus, the Lyceum, will be closed for restoration upon the completion of the Student Services Building. This $3.5 million undertaking will begin in spring 1998 and be completed by the year 2000.

Philip LaMoreaux

Above: Okay, so the elevators have not been put in yet, but this construction worker does not seem to have a problem with getting to the top.

Work began in December to transform the former home of the Honors Program into the University House. The University House will give faculty members a home to meet, pursue cross-disciplinary projects and host seminars.

At the Biological Field Station, ground was broke this summer for the Center for Water and Wetlands Resources. The 47,300 square foot, $6.5 million complex will include an educational facility, toxicology building, aquatic and culturing building, general laboratories, maintenance area, and a visitors' center.

A 3,500 square foot wing is being added to the southeast side of the University Museum to help reconfigurate the complex and create the Seymour Lawrence Gallery of Art. A world-renowned book publisher, Lawrence left the University his art collection and $700,000 to add the wing. Before his death, Lawrence established a reading room in the Ole Miss library to house his collection of signed first editions, photos, original manuscripts, correspondence and memorabilia of a long list of literary superstars.

Completion of a 52,000 square foot sports facility is expected by April of 1997. this complex, which is being constructed on the parking lot and part of the Blackburn-McMurray Field on the western side of campus. The $2.5 million complex will provide indoor practice courts for tennis and basketball; and offices, trainers' room, and other facilities for women's volleyball, soccer and softball.

The home of the largest and most diverse collection of literature in the state is almost finished. The J.D. Williams library is now fully automated and has internet access.

The state legislature has appropriated $500,000 to the University to begin planning space for the Department of Theatre, Arts and Music, as well as an all-campus performing arts center. The building will span six years, according to Chancellor Khayat's estimations.

Other projects under way or on the drawing board include renovating the 12,260 feet on the Engineering Sciences Building by early 1997; adding 5,750 square feet for basketball offices on the C.M. "Tad" Smith Coliseum by fall 1997; modernizing of the residence halls; completing the Teleproductions Resource Center by late 1997; building a new home for the National Food Service Management Institute by December 1998, and planning an early childhood education center.

In addition, the University will start work on its Advanced Education Center in Tupelo with its education partner Itawamba Community College. Slated for occupation in fall 1998, the 65,500 square foot facility will provide space for Ole Miss' undergraduate and graduate degree programs available in Tupelo, as well as professional enrichment courses.

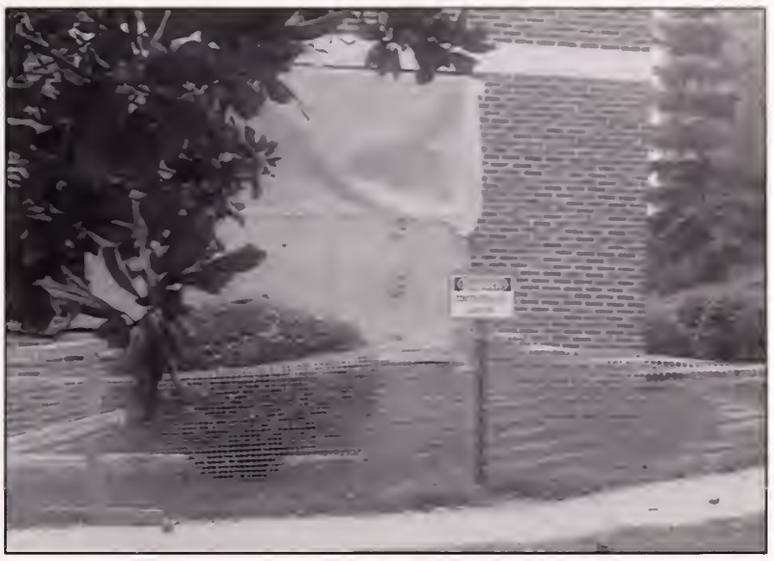

The University of Mississippi Medical Center, in Jackson, has $134 million on construction projects under way.

As you can see, Ole Miss is truly building for the twenty-first century. These improvements are just the tip of the iceberg. It is the hope of the faculty and administrators that the upgrading of the university will help graduates of the University be more competitive.

I Love the Night Life

Story by Ashly Ray

"Hey, what do you guys have on tap for the evening?"

"I have no idea! I think that Law of Nature or Tyrone is playing at the Gin. So we might stop by there. What about yourself?"

" I think that my date and I are going to go the movies and then go for some cappuccino at the Coffee Bistro."

"Well, you have a good night, and I'll see you when we get back...Oh, yeah! You should go to the Kappa Sig house for late night!"

"Bye."

Sound familiar? This is a typical conversation between two Ole Miss students. Where to go? What to do? Who's playing where? Actually, there is a lot going on, a great number of places to go, and there is always a band playing somewhere.

Oxford may be a small town, but one can never run out of things to do or places to go if the after-dark scene suits him.

Bars like J.W. Forrester's, Proud Larry's, and Murff's mainly cater to the twenty-one and up crowd. Bar/Restaurants like the Gin, Blind Jim's and City Grocery are a great place to grab a meal and listen to a groovy band. Lyric Hall, formerly known as Lafayette's, is a concert hall that boasts such acts as Wobitty, the Cooters, and Rooster.

If bars are not your thing, there are always the ever-popular fraternity parties on home football game weekends and after closing hours throughout the year. Often referred to by students as "late nights," "hall crawls," etc., these parties often host many of the student body's favorite acts.

After those late nights of partying when you get to feeling kind of hungry, there are the ever- open 24-hour eateries.

The new kid in town, Huddle House, offers a variety of breakfast food that can please an appetite at anytime of the day.

...if you are looking for a good time, you are in the right town.

Then there is the old faithful, Chevron. They have always been able to please that late night hunger with a chicken-on-a-stick. If chicken is not what you are craving there are egg rolls, potato logs and pre-packaged items.

The Hoka is famous around the Oxford area for its delightful cheesecake. It also offers a host of activities to fill any evening social schedule.

"I absolutely love the Hoka," says Becky Caraway, a freshman from Illinois.

Most of the restaurants have great food - always a plus for the hungry college student. From the catfish at Cafe N' Orleans, to the corn bread at Blind Jim's, to the sweet tea at McAlister's, there is a different restaurant for every noght of the week.

If you are in need of late night stress relief after an evening of cramming for that Chemistry test, Wal-Mart offers the perfect solution. For the first time, Wal-Mart is now open 24-hours.

Suzanne Boler, a freshman from Fla. said, "I think it's absolutely wonderful. I can always drag my friends to Wal-Mart at 2 a.m."

Arguably the most popular UM road trip is a 35-minute drive north across the Tallahahatchie River to the historic old town of Holly Springs. That's where Elvis lives -- that is, Elvis Aaron Presley McLeod, co-owner of Graceland, Too. Home of the largest and most inclusive collection of Elvis memorabilia in the world, Graceland, Too is open 24 hours, seven days a week at $5 per visitor, and welcomes Ole Miss students.

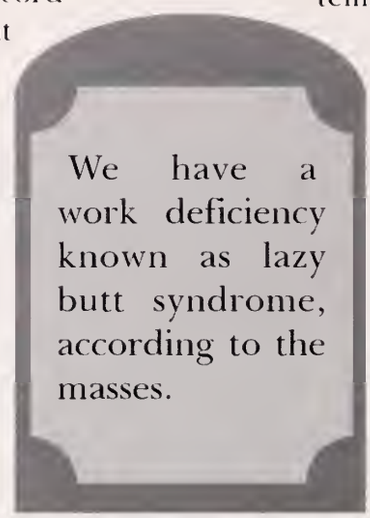

So, whether you are 18, 21 or somewhere between or beyond, if you are looking for a good time, you are in the right town. Oxford provides a wide array of entertainment with welcoming, small town charm. Stop in, have a bite to eat and a drink, and enjoy!

They Work Hard for the Money

Story by LaReeca Rucker

They call us "Generation X," a collective, selective group of individuals, identified and defined by their age of 20-something, lazy self-absorbed, selfish, sinful slackers, breaking our elders 10th commandment: Go ye therefore and get a job.

Here's more descriptive picture, painted by the living generations before us, of the work ethic that we lack, born without, perhaps, as some are born without spines. Let's be politically correct, shall we? We have a work deficiency, more commonly known as lazy butt syndrome, according to the masses. We stand at the front of Robert Frost's two roads diverged in a yellow wood and choose neither, saying sorry. Sorry, after all, is another term they use to describe us: sorry, lazy, irresponsible, self absorbed, etc....

We are a generation raised by the same television, and according to them, after four years of higher learning, most of us return home to our electric parent, spending our days indulging in cheese puffs, the comfort of our sofa, talk shows and soap operas. We weep when Bo and Hope marry for the third time. And cheer when Marlena shoots Stephano for the fourth time. Then we refill our bag of cheese puffs and prepare to watch "Friends" in the evening.

"Reality bites. This is the real world. They don't pay rent on the MTV version," they say. As if we didn't know. As if we didn't pay.

Every generation has it's own label, its own ingredients and pop-cultural creations. And, every generation has something to rebel against.

Ole Miss students are doing just that, rebelling against the infamous letter X. Here are a few examples.

Bailey Melton has his dream job.

"I'm the weather guy," he said. "I do the weather at WTVA in Tupelo, MS. I put together a forecast for television."

Bailey spends his weekends on the weather computer, predicting what the forces of nature have in store for us, moving degree symbols and tiny clouds with his map to the desired location on the little map of the United States. He created the weather maps and then performs live, relaying his information to everyone in North Mississippi, telling them what the future holds, rain or shine.

Another Ole Miss student that has a job that keeps him in touch with the real world is Heath Thompson, a double major in Biology and Chemistry, from New Albany, MS.

"I'm an E.M.T., so every time the ambulance goes out, I'm on it," Thompson said. "I've delivered a baby on the hospital dock. A lady came in and we delivered her before we got her upstairs. It's pretty tough sometimes."

Heath's Ole Miss education is preparing him for a career in medicine. He hopes to become a cardiovascular surgeon.

Hi Ho, Hi Ho, it's off to work we go, or seniors anyway. We go to college to learn, to enrich our lives with new ideas and people who have those new ideas, and that crap, but maybe most importantly, we go to college to get a job. Not just any job; one where you use the phrase, "Do you want fries with that?" We come to get our dream job. Where we can live to work, instead of working to live, one that doesn't make life a job itself, a nine to five job that we don't take and shove and slack away from.

Volunteering is a way of uniting for tomorrow the students of Ole Miss with the townspeople of Oxford.

Whether it is staffing a blood drive or tutoring a child, students can always lend a helping hand. Students can find their niche - from pets, to kids, to helping build a house -- giving them an opportunity to better their community, boost their self-esteem, and meet people from the town of Oxford.

> ...a way of uniting for tomorrow...

Popular activities of those of the generous spirit often include the following: being a Leap Frog tutor; building houses for low-income families through Habit for Humanity; helping our four legged furried friends at the Lafayette County Humane Society; saving our planet through a recycling program; providing a caring ear for a crisis phone line; serving meals to the less fortunate in area soup kitchens; or just helping that neighbor in need.

Volunteering, offering one's service to those in need, putting oneself at someone elses disposal, or however you word it gives one pride and self-worth and is an integral part of the college experience. Volunteers continue to unite us together for the greater well-being of Ole Miss and the Oxford com-

Business is Booming

Story by Karen Ashmore

This is my first year as a student at Ole Miss, and just as I was starting to learn my way around Oxford, someone asked me to write this article on the changes that seem to be going on everywhere. Well, you can imagine my predicament.

I started my quest for new businesses one afternoon, and was pleasantly surprised at what I found. Even though Oxford is a relatively small town, it has plenty of attractions for practically any crowd. Like other college towns, it is experiencing rapid modernization to meet the demands of today's busy students.

The changes are apparent both on campus and around the town of Oxford. With last year's privatization of the food court came the opportunity for students to shop fast-food chains such as Chick-fil-A, Little Caesar's, and Blimpie on the university campus. The campus bookstore is expected to follow the example set by the food court sometime later this year.

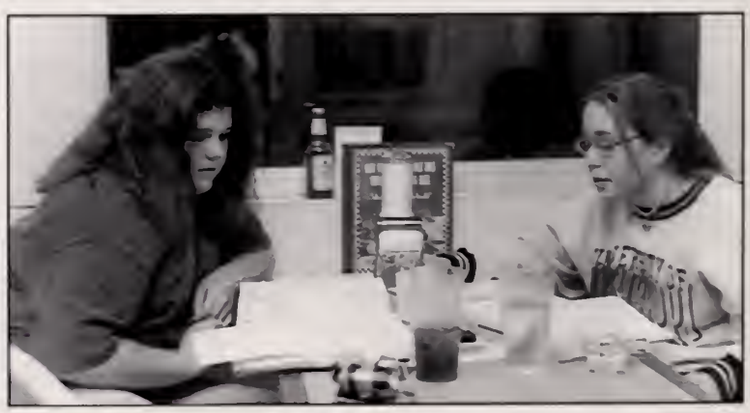

...it serves steaming plates of food 24 hours a day.

While cruising the streets of the first thing I noticed was the new shopping center across the street from Rainbow Cleaners. I hoped to visit a couple of the stores, but the only thing open was Buster Roodie's, a new deli. My friend and I went in for soup and sandwiches and left with different opinions of the place. I thought it was great and equalled McAlister's, an older rival deli in terms of the quality of food. My friend disagreed, calling it a lesser imitation.

Right down the street from Buster Roodie's was a happening little place called the Huddle House. Through the windows, I spied students and truck drivers alike sipping coffee and dining on platters of fried eggs and pork. Huddle House is the answer to many a late nighter's prayer, as it serves steaming plates of food 24 hours a day. It might not be low-cal, but who's counting at 3 a.m?

Coming from a town with a Wal-Mart Supercenter, I know what it feels like to be dependent upon the place. The only thing about the one in my hometown was that it closed at 11 p.m. every night, which posed a serious threat to addicts like me. To my complete and utter delight,Oxford's Wal-Mart, just as of this year, is open 24 hours! This means to me "no fear"..."no worries." No matter what's amiss, everything will work out because Wal-Mart, my second home, will be OPEN.

After my evening of exploring Oxford, I returned to the dorm with a new concept of the place. The town I had once considered quaint and homey is rapidly growing. With new retail stores popping up everywhere, Oxford is on its way to becoming quite modern. In doing so, I'm glad to say that Oxford has not abandoned its small-town, safe atmosphere. Other towns have chosen to sacrifice this to the modernization of their way of life. I think the combination of convenience and the feeling of "home away from home" makes Oxford and Ole Miss a very unique and comfortable place to spend your college years.

Right: Green eggs and ham. The Huddle House provided a sanctuary for late-night studying. The business was one of the new establishments awaiting students' return this fall.

Far Right: Score! Midnight Nintendo at Wal-Mart proved to be quality entertainment for these freshmen. Oxford's Wal-Mart is now open 24 hours.

Everyone's a Winner

Story special from Intramural Sports

For those of us who always dreamed of playing college ball but didn't quite make the cut, hope remains.

Thanks to the university's Intramural Sports program, athletically inclined students have the opportunity to participate in a wide array of sporting events throughout the school year.

The Intramural Sports program is the university's means of reaching the goal that all students should have the opportunity to participate in campus sporting events.

The program is organized to benefit all students by hosting events ranging from one-day special events to team and individual sports.

Approximately 900 teams organize and participate in intramurals on a yearly basis. Teams are formed within residence halls, Greek organizations, campus clubs and organizations, and by independent student groups.

Winning teams in some sports are sponsored by Ole Miss as they compete in regional and national intramural championships. This incentive motivates teams not only to participate in the athletic events, but to strive for the top record.

Oh the Places We Will Go!

Story by Susan Oliphant

When you think you need a break from Ole Miss and Oxford, consider studying abroad! We have study abroad opportunities for our students all over the world, almost any time of the year, and for lengths of time ranging from two weeks to an entire academic year. You will receive college credit for your studies, get to see and experience another culture, travel, and get that break you wanted. A study-abroad experience is a life-changing experience.

We have many study abroad programs that are "exchange" programs. Exchange programs are particularly attractive because they can save you lots of money while really involving you in another country's culture. An exchange is the best way to gain fluency in another language. You study at foreign university for the price of Ole Miss tuition. Choose from sites in Europe, Asia, Africa, South and Central America, Canada, or Australia. Many times your classes can be taught in English if you do not feel ready for that total submersion. We also offer many programs during the summer or break period. What could be more exciting than to complete your second year of a foreign language during a summer study in Germany, Spain, or France? Or how about spending half of your summer studying in London, Cambridge, Dublin, or Scotland, and still earning Ole Miss credit? We have short-term courses during the Winter Break in London or Australia, and in May in Ireland. Often studying around people who really speak your second language is such fun that you will be searching for a way to learn more about it and come back again.

You study at a private university for the price of Ole Miss tuition.

You can have a full and active life here and still have time to take out for some "abroad" adventure. You do need to plan for it. Come by the Study Abroad Office and see what is available. Keep your grades up. Talk to your parents. And do not think it is impossible. We have programs to fit most majors and most budgets.

If you do not do this while you're in college, chances are you never will. Far sooner than you can now imagine, you will have obligations that make a year, a semester, or even a few weeks abroad too complicated to arrange. Do not miss out on such a mixture of education, self-knowledge, travel, and fun.

Ole Miss students have studied abroad in the following countries:

Australia	France	Malta
Canada	Germany	Mexico
Costa Rica	Hungary	Phillipines
England	Ireland	Spain
Finland	Kenya	Sweden

World of Difference

Story by Takehiko Nomura

> "I am making a lot of friends, both American and international students"
> -Chachura Oumpigul, Thailand

Around 600 students and faculty form 66 countries study and work at the University of Mississippi this school term.

Many international students are enchanted with Southern culture, a laid-back environment, and the city's literary tradition.

Since the late 1980s, international enrollments at Ole Miss have increased, surpassing 500, especially more students form Malaysia and China.

More international students "diversify the campus and allow American students to have contact with people from different countries and different cultures and broaden their educational experience," said Nolan Shaepard, director of the Ole Miss International Programs. "(So) American students are more aware of global issues and (the) impact of other cultures."

The annual international festival held in the city's sole shopping mall, which showcases each of about 25 participating country's culture and serves ethnic food, is one of the community's biggest events.

Malaysian Night, Indian Night and Chinese New Year party also attract students, faculty and residents, showering them with ethnic taste, folk songs and rhythmic dance with vivid costumes.

Those from abroad usually have a hard time acclimating to the new environment.

"When I first came here in August 1995, this college town was so quiet. I wondered how I could survive," said Koffi Awute, an Education graduate student from Togo. "I am making a lot of friends, both American and international students," said Chachurat Ounpigul, a TESOL (Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages) graduate student from Thailand. "It's hard to catch up with class, but my advisors and friends are helpful."

The last year alone Shepard flew to Israel, South Africa, Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia among others to recruit student and attempt to establish exchange programs with local institutions. Ole Miss has direct exchange programs with colleges in England, the Netherlands, Germany, Japan and Russia.

"Experience of studying abroad is a profound one. It teaches self-reliance as well as broadens a person's perspectives of the world," said All Gleason, a senior who studied American literature in spring at the University of Nottingham, England. "It's and adventure of the discovery of yourself and the world you're living."

A Safe Place to Learn

Story by Chris Cave

You can feel safe being on the Ole Miss campus now, but with good reason. The University of Mississippi police department (UPD) is working hard to create an atmosphere which is conducive to learning and free from crime. With twenty-nine sworn officers on staff, the UPD is striving to continue its consistent record for deterring crime on campus. With the continuance of programs like Adopt-A-Cop and Adopt-A-Dorm, the UPD is working with Ole Miss students to address the importance of safety and the value of rapport between faculty, staff, students, and campus police. Officer Linda Christian of the UPD and a native of Fulton, says, "The UPD is expanding its services to accommodate students even more." With new police sub-stations at the Stockard-Martin and Mayes dorms and the addition of both bi-cycle and motorcycle patrol units, students can likely see some form of policing anywhere they look. Thank you, UPD for your service and dedication to the Ole Miss family.

The Wonder Years

We are those infamous college students...the ones whose parents emancipate to live on their own.

Four years of supported liberation, four years of incessant time spent with friends, four years of late nights and early mornings, and four years to enjoy a somewhat carefree state of mind before you are catapulted into the reality of the working world.

We are those infamous college students you hear parents talk about, the ones who absorb their every last penny, the ones who are sowing their wild oats, and the ones whose parents reluctantly emancipate to live on their own. Whether you live in an apartment, dorm, house, or Greek house, the scene is set. Your abode is merely an aperture, which currently serves as your residence, but in years to come, it will hold memories.

So while memories are built, the town of Oxford is full of college students who inhabit almost every possible housing opportunity. During the week, apartment complexes like the University Commons and One Anderson Place view students scurrying around town hectically, and on weekends, they witness the extremes of energy release. From couch potatoes to party seekers to book worms, residents of these apartments all agree that while proximity may not be an advantage, your own space is undoubtedly an advantage.

However, there is always that residence hall beckoning the names of all freshman, and all those who desire a convenient and affordable place to live. These residence halls are in optimal locations on campus. While they facilitate involvement, they are extremely safe. Along with these advantages, they also provide comraderie among classmates.

Nevertheless, there are always those who crave more solitary surroundings, and for these students, there are small college houses all around Oxford available for rent. Some of them are newly built. Some are old, but with a touch of college students become homes flourishing with character. Students who live in houses off campus enjoy their privacy.

Since Ole Miss is forty percent Greek, naturally, a good number of students also fill those tiny bedrooms on sorority and fraternity row. On sorority row, window treatments and floral bedspreads permeate through the house. While on fraternity row, there tends to be a trendy stench of dirty laundry and an eternal battle of stereos. These houses are also convenient and very appealing to those students involved in Greek organizations.

So while you bide your time in your given lodging, enjoy its advantages. Laugh at those often unusual living circumstances. Salvage all the laughter, tears, stress, and companions. One day these will become valuable memories, memories that might speak one word yet mean a thousand.

GREEK

Words of a Greek Lifetime Bonds

Story by Gorden Fleming

Why "go Greek"? I think in making this decision, one must consider the multitude of benefits the Ole Miss Greek system offers the individual. Not only does it offer camaraderie throughout the college experience, but it builds friendships of a lifetime, as well. We're talking friendships with the people who will be attendants in your wedding and pallbearers in your funeral. Now, I do not claim that these kind of relationships would not be achieved on an independent level. However, when you are around people for three meals a day at times and countless hours between classes and meals at your Greek house, bonding is inevitable.

One of the best things about being in a fraternity or sorority is the diversity of the members. Although you share the same letters and affiliation there are so many different types of people. Unlike many may believe, individuals are not forced to conform to a certain way of thinking, they are allowed to think freely, and forge their own identity.

As far as academics are concerned, some think being in a Greek organization would distract one from studies. To the contrary, with mandatory study hall hours and GPA requirements, there is added pressure to excel academically. Involvement in honorary societies is highly encouraged, as well. New members often cannot become initiated members because of missing the sometimes stringent grade requirements.

In my personal experience, the Greek system has had a very positive impact. I have grown mentally as well as spiritually, and I now know what true brotherhood is. I know the Greek system is not for everyone, and I certainly do not claim that it should be. For those who do pledge, however, the experience can be life-altering.

An Independent Speaks Out

Story by Angela Essary

While the fraternal system does offer an abundance of opportunities for socializing and fun, being a Greek at Ole Miss means much more. For some, the only things they hold in common are the letters they pin on; nonetheless it is a bond to be shared. People are given the chance to meet others from a variety of backgrounds who they may or may not have something in common with.

As sophomore Bill Bunting said, "There are a lot of strengths in the Greek system . . . There's a support base that's really helpful in college. People take care of each other."

In an effort to maintain a feeling of independence and freedom, many students opt not to become a part of the Greek system.

Some feel that college is full enough without adding such a heavy time commitment to it. Senior Trevor Landry says that as an Independent, "I don't feel tied down to a certain group of friends or organization. I don't always feel precommitted."

Some students feel Independents are able to remain uninfluenced in times of elections when voting often comes down to a loyalty to a sorority or fraternity.

"I have more time to concentrate on my studies, and I don't feel pressured to have to fit in," are a couple of the reasons sophomore Crystal Gremard cites for remaining an Independent.

Independents have not made the choice to reject any particular life style but more simply open themselves up to more opportunities.

Regardless of the decision a student makes when trying to chose between being Greek and Independent, neither situation is a package deal. Like college, both paths can only be what the student makes of them and no more. College is a place to meet life-long friends and learn thought-changing lessons no matter what standpoint it is done from.

A Degree...Now What?

Story by Brett Bagley

We have been preparing for this since first grade. We have mastered the ABCs, advanced the three Rs, and will possess a piece of paper equipping us to face the reality of the world and get a job. It is a frightening thought, getting a job, because the job itself is not the problem. It is the thought of someone sitting behind a desk in a small room wall papered by numerous degrees and accomplishments telling you "they're sorry but right now there's not an opening."

If you think about it, no where in the university is there a class title "Rejection 101" or "How to handle Rejection 102." Rejection is just a fact of life everyone confronts and deals with at some point in time.

The same could be said with success. No "How to handle success 101" class is an option for aspiring young adults. Neither is a more fundamental class, "How to be successful 101" offered. Instead we pack four years of skills into our brains and hope they are good enough to land us a job. But there is something more to keeping a job or to continue seeking one that is separate from our learned abilities.

There is a quote by writer, Ellen Glasgow, "We keep forgetting that all we can control is our response to failure and success." Four years of college prepares us to do the job, but it is our attitude about the job that ultimately determines our performance or ability to perform.

We have all heard the sayings of being low on the totem pole, starting off at the bottom, paying our dues, etc. Phrases like these justify the grunt work we working amateurs do during the early years. The reality of starting at the bottom is you might not get to the top in two years. Whatever choice fate bestows, the choice to control fate's effects lies upon your shoulders. It is the ultimate test of character. Teasing your courage and challenging your abilities' potential to drudge on and to make dreams reality is an individual choice.

That is what it is really all about. Sure learned skills will get you in the door, but it's the way you motivate your skills and roll with life's punches that put you on success's path. Your goal should be to not only open the door, but to strive to own the building.

Four years of college has given us some life time friends, unforgettable memories, a home away from home, and and the persuasion to make our own decisions. Getting a job will give us a steady income, acquaintances, an office (maybe), and will require us to make choices. The decisions we make in the job world will reflect everything we are in ability and in self. It is the chance for us to not only make the difference but be the difference. Discovering our individual inside strength completes us as a person. Only when this Epiphany is revealed to us is when we are not only "getting a job" but instead "making a life."

Pomp and Circumstance

Story by Chris Cave

It's that one special day all students look forward to as students. Scholars refer to it as "commencement exercises," but most just call it graduation. In the year of 1996 the University of Mississippi graduated 1,812 students into careers ranging from law to pharmacy. During the May ceremonies the crowd on hand at the Tad Smith Coliseum saw 1,252 students face the stage to receive their rewards for their hard work and dedication to academic excellence and achievement. Daniel P. Jordan, President of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation addressed the graduates as the keynote speaker of commencement. The August graduation placed 560 students in the spotlight for their achievements at Ole Miss. Those in attendance said both ceremonies were a fitting way to pay tribute to the students who completed their respective degrees. Congratulations to all of those students who graduated.

A State of Mind

Special by the Ole Miss Staff

Do you ever wonder just what it is that draws people to Ole Miss? How about what keeps them coming back?

Evidence can be found upon the arrival of each freshman class and on any given football game day to support the hypothesis that we have something very special here.

Ask students why they came to Ole Miss, and we bet you'll get something like, "when I visited the campus I just knew."

Alumni seem to be captured by the spell as well. Hundreds of them still make pilgrimages to the Grove, possibly in an attempt to relive what they knew while at Ole Miss.

Whatever it is that characterizes Ole Miss for each individual, we believe the feeling involves more than simply the picturesque campus and athletic traditions.

We think Ole Miss, if defined by Webster, would be something like this:

Ole Miss (ol-mis) n.- 1. Home of the Colonel (Rebel, that is). 2. Land of gently rolling green hills and magnolia trees. 3. Epitome of the New South.

The Athletic Department at Ole Miss is making strides along with the other departments at The University of Mississippi to modernize and better itself for continued prosperity. From the varsity level to intramurals, university sports offers something for just about everyone. Sports at Ole Miss have a reputation of being extremely effective in rallying the support of university students, staff, alumni, and outside fans. Some activities such as "Groving" on football Saturdays and playing intramural sports have become institutionalized traditions. Equally important is the day-to-day involvement of the students in athletics and recreation. Along with traditionally popular sports such as football, basketball, and baseball, other sports which were at one time considered secondary have now entered the limelight. New sports such as women's softball add a new dimension to Ole Miss athletics, while women's soccer and football under head coach Tommy Tuberville set their sights on improvement in their sophomore seasons. Other Ole Miss sports such as volleyball, tennis, track, golf, rugby, lacrosse, cheerleading, and pom squads also strive to meet the tradition of excellence that characterizes our university.

Auburn had not allowed a point all season. Ole Miss cracked the Tiger defense but could not stay with the 15th ranked team.

A Ta'Boris Fisher fumbled put return set up Auburn's first score, a 23-yard pass from Dameyune Craig to Robert Baker. The Tigers went up 14-0 with 4:05 left in the first quarter as Craig hit Karsten Bailey from 22 yards out.

On Auburn's next possession, Baker fumbled a punt return, and Lawrence Adams recovered the ball for Ole Miss on the AU 20-yard line.

Paul Head hit Grant Heard on a 10-yard scoring toss for the Rebels' first touchdown!

The Rebs evened things up with an Artie Moore one-yard touchdown run. Auburn, however, took over with its first possession of the second quarter. The Tigers made a 34-yard field goal and then a touchdown with 5:22 left in the first half.

The Rebels scored 14 points in the fourth quarter, but mistakes continued to hurt the Rebs. Final Score: UM 28 AU 45

It was sweet music for the Rebels in Music City as they came away with a 20-9 victory over Vanderbilt. The Rebs opened the scoring with a Tim Montz 31-yard field goal that capped a 52-yard, 10-play drive to give them a 3-0 lead that would hold through the first quarter. The Commodores tied up the game with 8:39 to go in the first half, but didn't score again until the last minute of the game. It was definitely the Rebel's game. Paul Head had to find a new target in place of injured Ta'Boris Fisher. In came Lawrence Adams who caught a career high six passes for 53 yards to lead the Rebels, including a 7 yard gain and a 9-yard pickup that led to an Artie Moore 2-yard touchdown run which gave the Rebs a 10-3 lead at halftime. On the Commodores' opening drive of the second half, Marecus Williams fumbled on the first play, and Walker Jones recovered the ball on the Vandy 23-yard line. Six plays later, Moore carried it in for his second touchdown of the night. The Rebels added a Montz career-long 54-yard field goal. That would be all the Rbels would need. They kept the Vanderbilt quaterbacks on the ground all night long with 10 sacks. Vandy's last minute touchdown ended the game at 20-9.

For the first time since the 1991 season, the Rebs and Vols met on the football field. It was the Rebels' first-ever, regular season game nationally televised by ESPN; it was in front of 62,640 fans; and the Volsdefeated Ole Miss 41-3. For about 24 minutes, the Rebels held the explosive Tennessee offense in check, allowing only a Jeff Hall 24-yard field goal. Rebel placekicker Tim Montz tied the game with 10:56 left in the 2nd quarter, but it was all Tennessee after that. On the Vols' next possession, Jay Graham netted big gains of 13 and 14 yards before Eric Lane rushed for 31yards and a touchdown to give Tennessee a 10-3 lead. Graham later scored another touchdown on a one yard run to give the Vols 17-3 margin going into halftime. Things did not start well in the second half for the Rebs as Head was penalized 18 yards for intentional grounding on the first play of the second half, then threw an interception on the next play. A fumble by quarterback Stewart Patridge allowed the Vols to take a commanding 31-3 lead. Tennesse would add another touchdown late in the 3rd quarter and a 38-yard field goal with 4:52 to go in the game. The Rebels could only manage 184 total offensive yards. They yielded 503 offensive yards to the Vols.

The Ole Miss defence was able to hold Bama to 10 first half points, but it was the vaunted Crimson Tide defense that did the damage, shutting out the Rebels 37-0. The Rebs were in the game the first half. Bama got the ball first, and the Rebel defense held the Tide to three plays and out. But on the ensuing punt, a penalty against the Rebs gave the Tide another opportunity that led them down the field to kick a 30-yard field goal by Jon Brock. The Rebs tried to come back, intercepting Tide quarterback Freddie Kitchens in the end zone and forcing a fumble, but the offense could never mount a successful drive. For the game, Ole Miss managed only 158 total yards, including only 26 on the ground. Bama went up to 10-0 in the first half when Kitchens threw a 10-yard scoring pass to Michael Vaughn with 8:18 in the half. In the 3rd quarter, Kitchens found Vaughn again, who ran the ball from the UM 45-yard line for a touchdown. They scored again with 3:05 left in the 3rd quarter. They put the nail in the coffin with two more touchdowns in the first seven minutes of the 4th quarter. Bama amassed 489 yards and held the ball almost nine minutes more than the Rebs.

Ole Miss was outgained by Arkansas 279 yards to 232. The Razorbacks controlled the clock for 37:08, while the Rebs had the ball for 22:52. Ole Miss also committed 10 penalties for 86 yards. The result was a 13-7 victory for Arkansas. In the first quarter alone, Ole Miss only ran six plays and held the ball for just under three minutes. However, the Hogs were not much better, scoring just a field goal. In the second quarter, it seemed as if the teams just traded interceptions and punts. The Rebs seemed to have put things together in the third quarter. Stewart Patridge led the Rebs on an 11-play, 65-yard march that ended in a 12-yard touchdown run by John Avery to give Ole Miss a 7-3 lead. Avery ran a career-best 155 yards on 20 carries during the game. The Rebels' lead held until the beginning of the 4th quarter. Then, a 12-yard scoring strike pushed the Razorbacks to a 10-7 lead. A 22-yard field goal by Todd Latourette sealed the win for Arkansas.

Avery led all rushers. Patridge was 9 of 23 for 68 yards. Starting signal caller Paul Head, who left in the 2nd quarter, was 2 of 5 for 19 yards.

Ole Miss had an impressive 54-12-2 mark entering its Homecoming game and had never lost to LSU on Homecoming. For the first half, it looked like the Rebels might have a chance to extend their homecoming streak over the Tigers. The Rebs marched the ball down to the LSU 27-yard line on the first possession of the game, but Tim Monts' 44-yard field goal attempt went wide right.

The Rebels held the Tigers three plays and out twice. On their third possession of the game, quarterback Stewart Patridge was called for intentional grounding in the end zone, giving LSU a safety and a 2-0 lead. Ole Miss and LSU went to heir locker rooms for halftime with the Tigers leading by two.

LSU got the ball to start the 2nd half, and moved 72 yards in 12 plays to kick a 25-yard field goal. On the Tigers' next possession, Kevin Faulk made the first touchdown of the game with a 21-yard run. Faulk, who rushed for 117 yards on 28 carries, gave LSU a 12-0 lead.

The Tigers added two more touchdowns on a 6-yard pitch to Faulk and a 2-yard run by Herb Tyler to start the 4th quarter with a demanding 25-0 lead.

The Rebs got on the board when John Avery ran back the ensuing kick-off 100 yards for a touchdown. The Tigers answered with two more touchdowns to make the final score 39-7.

UM v GEORGIA

The Ole Miss defense forced four turnovers as the Rebs earned their fourth victory over the Bulldogs in Athens with a 31-27 win.

The Rebs got things going early when Brock Kreitz recovered a fumble on the Bulldog 26-yard line. That would set up a 14-yard touchdown run by John Avery, who rushed for 119 yards on 29 carries for the day.

Less than one minute later, Nate Wayne picked off a Mike Bobo pass and returned it 16 yards for the touchdown, giving the Rebels an early 14-0 lead.

The Dawgs turned the tables quickly with two touchdowns, a 16-yard Bobo pass to Juan Daniels followed by a 40-yard bomb to Hinds Ward which tied the score.

Georgia scored three times in the second quarter, a 23-yard scoring pass to Daniels and two field goals by Dax Langley to lead 27-14 at halftime.

David Evans stripped the ball from Bobo, Kyle Wicker ran it in from nine yards out for the touchdown, cutting the lead to27-21 with eight minutes left in the third quarter.

Late in the period, Tim Montz got the Rebs to within three with a 51-yard field goal. After a punt, Patridge connected with Ronnie Heard for a 25-yard gain which set up the winning touchdown, a two-yard pass to Eli Anding.

The Rebels had much to play for in the annual "Egg Bowl." Bragging rights for the entire year were at stake, but even more significant, was a chance to have back-to-back winning seasons under probation with severe sanctions.

Their last four match-ups had been decided by a touchdown or less, and the '96 showdown appeared to be headed for another close call. It was a game of defense, and even though the Rebs held the MSU offense scoreless, the Dogs made the big plays.

With the game scoreless through one and a half quarters, MSU's Eric Brown picked off a Stewart Patridge pass at the Ole Miss 13-yard line and returned it for a touchdown.

The Rebs were unable to capitalize on a chance to tie the game, and MSU took a 7-0 lead into the locker room at halftime.

UM received the ball to start the 3rd quarter. A 10-yard penalty and a quarterback sack pushed them back to the 4-yard line. One play later, the Bulldogs tackled John Avery, who rushed for 135 yards for the day, in the endzone for a safety to take a 9-0 lead.

With 45 seconds left in the game, Patridge was sacked for a loss of 12 yards and fumbled the ball. Brown recovered the ball and returned it 60 yards for a touchdown.

1996-97 Ole Miss "M" Club

Story by Heather Farris

The Ole Miss M Club is an honorary and service organization composed of the men and women who have lettered in one of the intercollegiate sports sponsored by the university. The various varsity sports include: cross country, track and field, baseball basketball, football, golf, tennis, rifle, soccer, softball, and volleyball.

The M Club has many purposes. It represents student-athletes on campus; it also encourages and develops school spirit and loyalty. The organization also provides social and service opportunities for its members and assists in recruiting future athletes. Also, the student M Club, along with the M Club Alumni Association, annually sponsors scholarships for the children of former M Club members. The club is also honored with selecting the homecoming court.

Ole Miss Rebelettes

Story by Angela Brignole

The Rebelette Varsity Pom Squad is comprised of twenty-two dancers who perform with the University Band during football game halftimes. Sixteen of the girls also cheer on the sidelines during Rebel games. Not only do the Rebelettes dance for crowds in Vaught-Hemingway, they also perform during men's basketball games. At these games, they dance during both time-onts and halftime.

This year's captains are Angela Brignole and Katie Yarborough.

The co-captains are Kelly Bradshaw and Claire Dobbs.

1996-97 OLE MISS MEN'S GOLF TEAM

Story by Kate Curtis

The Rebel season looked bright as they opened the season with thirteen determined golfers, three of which are seniors. The fall campaign began at the Legends/Pepsi Intercollegiate in Franklin, Tenn. Ending at the SEC championships in Birmingham,AL, the Rebels placed sixth after senior Brian Rowell's second place performance.Rowell also came in first over-all for the Rebel golfers with an outstanding stroke average of 73 out of 35. Other great performances were given by golfers senior Thad Hudgens,with an over-all stroke average of 74.70; Haymes Snedeker, with a stroke average of 75; and Wes Willis, with a stroke average of 74.64.

The Rebels had a great season, and are looking forward to many more!

If you have not driven by the University's golf course lately, then you're probably missing out. The Lady Rebels Golf Team is quickly climbing the ladder to sit among the nation's elite. "We are working to become the best in the country," said head coach Keil Purdom, who is in her sixth year at the helm of the "lady linkers." With a top thirty ranking by Golf Week Magazine, the ladies are creating much room to brag. Actually, they take it all in stride. "We encourage one another regardless of each others performances," said Marianne Morris, a senior from Dallas,TX. The girls were able to produce an impressive three top five tournament finalists in their '96 campaign, including a second place finish at their own tournament.

OLE MISS LADY REBEL SOCCER TEAM

S O C C E R

Story by Chris Cave

In their second year of organized team play, the Ole Miss women's soccer team is continually striving to get better. Under the direction of head coach Steve Holeman, the lady rebels are looking to the future--and what they are seeing should be to the delight of Ole Miss soccer faithful. With the graduation of only one senior, the lady rebels will be relying on depth to forge into greater success for the '97 season. Sweeper Elizabeth Lee, a sophomore from Collierville, TN, attributes the teams early success to the commoradory that exists between players. "Our friendships off the field help our play on the field. We work well together."

With a rising intrest in women's on campus sports, the lady rebels have great incentive to perform. Ole Miss women's soccer is alive and kick-en'!!!

1996 OLE MISS MENS' SOCCER TEAM

S O C C E R

Story by Bill Bunting

Men's Soccer here at Ole Miss got into full swing on September 7, 1996. The team is composed of seventeen players ranging from Freshmen to Graduate and Law Students. These seventeen players were led by two new coaches who decided to lead the team through the season.

One of these coaches is Jim McGuire, a resident of Oxford. The other is Bernard Vogel who is originally from Sweden. Vogel brings to the squad the experience of having played for the National Team.

This dedicated team of players and coaches combined forces to go through the eight game season with some impressive victories. This season marked victories over teams such as Samford and the University of Southern Mississippi.

The team looks to have many more promising seasons ahead of it in the years to come.

The Ole Miss Women's Volleyball Team is quickly becoming one of the nation's hottest sports tickets. Under the direction of Coach John Blair, in his eleventh year, the Lady Rebels' fifteen member roster is setting high expectatons for the future. "We've come a long way," says senior Liz Poerner of San Antonio, Texas, who also holds the school record for assists.

Known for their competitive spirit on the court as well as their beauty off the court, the Lady Rebel Netters are making a name for themselves, especially in the S.E.C. The girls finished the 1995 season with a much improved 17-17 record and are looking forward to even greater success despite the loss of five seniors to graduation. "We're a close group," said Julia Sitarz, a senior from Cape Coral, Florida. With promising young talent and an overall good attitude, the Lady Rebels should enjoy even greater endeavors in the future.

"Take me out to the ballgame: take me out to the park..."

Attending Ole Miss baseball games has continued to be on the students' Top Ten List of Things to Do on Campus.

After traveling to states such as Kentucky, Florida, and Arkansas, it was obvious that the baseball team would have a very challenging season.

The Rebel Baseball Team did very well, finishing the 1996 spring season with twenty-four exciting wins!

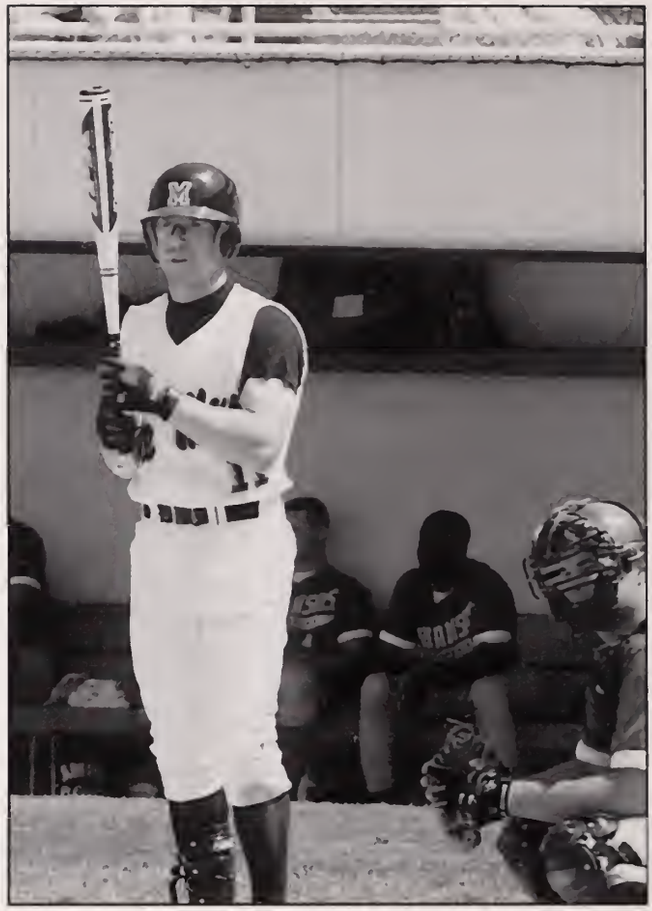

Having done a great job recruiting some of the nation's finest new baseball players, Ole Miss looks forward to 1997 with hopes for another prosperous season.

New Lady Reb Softball Team says, "No Excuses"

Story by Chris Cave

Building a winning sports team takes time, but first year assistant softball coach Jody Swagel says, "No excuses! We're not taking our first year as a program as an excuse for not being competetive."

And competetive they must be. With fifty-six games on their schedule the Lady Rebel bat swingers hardly have time to breath.

Preparation for the season has included a five to six day work week averaging about two and a half to three hours per workout. But there is indeed much reason to be excited. This 17-member squad includes several junior college All-Americans and some of the nation's most acclaimed prep players. Amanda Five, a freshman pitcher from Brentwood,Tennessee characterized the team as a "cohesive unit which works together extremely well."

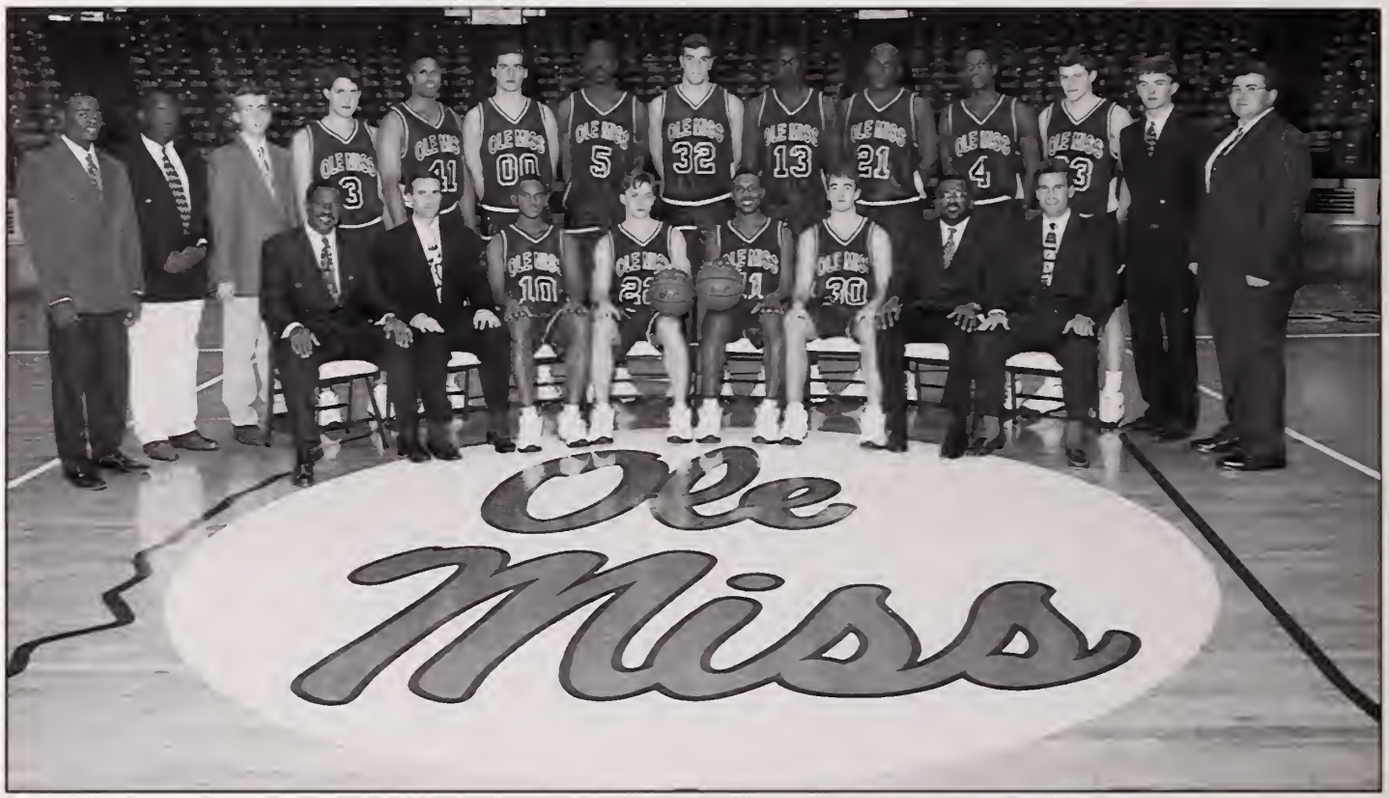

The softball team will call Oxford's Stone Park their home for the first year of play, but are looking forward to the completion of the new stadium for the spring of 1998. We wish coaches Maudie, Kalisak,and Swagel and all the girls the best of luck during their inaugural season.

MIDNIGHT MADNESS COMES TO U.M.

Story by Courtney Hunter

Curtesy of Sports Information

Joining the tradition of colleges across the country, Ole Miss held its first-ever Midnight Madness event in Tad Smith Coliseum on October 14, 1996. Official men's and women's basketball practice started at the stroke of midnight on the 15th. in front of nearly 3,000 excited Rebel fans. The event was designed to set the pace for support throughout the 1996-97 season.

The hours leading up to midnight were filled with activities to get the crowd pumped up and involved. ther were amazing perfomances by the Bud Light Daredevis, a basketball stunt team, the Rebelettes, and the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders. After a countdown to midnight, the lights were dimmed and the basketball team entered amidst balloons, streamers, and the roaring crowd. The men's team held a slam dunk contest while the ladies shot three pointers; each team then had a three minute srimmage.

Everyone was pleasanlty surprised with the turnout for the event. "I've been here 18 years and never in my wildest dreams would I have thought we'd have gotten this kind of support for Midnight Madness at Ole Miss," said Lady Rebel head coach Van Chancellor. Men's head coach Rob Evans said he knew Ole Miss students would come through when the Rebels needed them.

OLE MISS

1996-97 LADY REBEL BASKETBALL TEAM

by Chris Cave

If you are a fan of the hardcourt, there are a few ladies I think you should meet here at Ole Miss. The 1996-97 Lady Rebels Basketball Team looks to once again be the powerhouse of the Southeastern Conference Western Division. With depth at key positions like guard...and with names like Miller, Seybert, and Sides returning, the ladies should more than likely continue their reputation as being the most consistant sports team on the Ole Miss campus. Head Coach Van Chancellor, in his 19th season, brings new arsenal to the court...especially at the low post.

New faces like Tiffany Adkins and Miquita Mackey should spark many Rebel victories down the stretch.

When all was said and done last season, the Lady Rebels posted an impressive 18-11 finish in all-around play and added their 11th winning season in the SEC in 14 years. Here's hoping that the Lady Rebs hit nothing but the bottom of the net.

U M RUGBY

1996-97 OLE MISS RUGBY TEAM

Story by Kate Curtis

Major Joe Davis just started his first year as the coach of the Ole Miss Rugby Team.Thus far, Coach Davis has done an excellent job of leading the team into its twenty-fourth playing season. Not only does the team have a newcoach, but Ashley Everatt stepped in as their new captain after Tim Goulding was injured. This year the team enjoyed many victories such as Louisiana Tech and Rhodes College. Losses includedgames against such teams as USM and Memphis State. Luckily, the twenty-three fierce players will lose only about four seniors this year to graduation.

Rugby, which is sponsored by the University, is a full contact sport that has been around since the early 1800s. It's a great sport of strength, speed, and skill that everyone should support and enjoy.

Lacrosse has finally arrived in Oxford, Mississippi. After a late start in the spring of 1995, the Ole Miss lacrosse team has officially joined the Southeastern Lacrosse Conference in the fall of 1996.

The Southeastern lacrosse Conference consists mainly of teams from this region. These teams include Emory, the Citadel, Mercer, Tennessee, Vanderbilt, Auburn, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Georgia, South Carolina and Georgia Southern. Last year, Ole Miss participated as a probationary member.

The team hopes to be better than last year. After only losing two players, through recruiting, the team gained thirty players.

The team plans to play games in the Mardi Gras tournament in new Orleans, as well as four home games and five away games.

CROSS COUNTRY

Story by Bill Bunting

This year, the Ole Miss Track and Cross Country teams look to have an exciting year ahead of them. They will be hosting two track and field meets here at Ole Miss in the spring semester. The Cross Country team has already played host to the 1996 Southeastern Conference Cross Country Championship.

The championship meet was held at the University Golf Course on the weekend of November 2, 1996. The Ole Miss womens' team competed first and came out strong with a good showing, the best of any Lady Rebel ever on the Cross Country Team. They were followed closely by the men.

The men also competed well. Ole Miss came out strong with our first runner coming in at the seventh position. Ole Miss continued to have a strong showing at the meet with an overall finish of fifth place out of ten teams. South Carolina and Mississippi State did not compete in the tournament for the mens' division.

Both teams have represented us well this year and are expected to do well on into the next semester and in future years as they compete with some of the nations best cross country and track teams in the nation.

Congratulations and good luck to both Rebel Teams.

The Ole Miss Men's Tennis Team Had an outstanding 1995-96 season. They finished with a 21-3 record(12-1SEC). They were the regular season conference champions and shared the overall conference title with the University of Georgia. At the end of the season, the team was ranked fourth in the nation.

Individual members of the team did an outstanding job as well. Johan Hede finished the season 39-10 and was undefeated in the SEC. He ended the season ranked as the number four player in the nation.

Ali Hamadeh finished the season as the sixth ranked player in the nation. This accomplishment gave Ole Miss the distinction of being the only team in the SEC with two players ranked in the top ten.

To round out an already outstanding season for the Ole Miss Men's Tennis Team, Coach Billy Chadwick was named SEC Coach of the Year and Region 3 Coach of the year.

Story by Bill Bunting

The 1995-96 Ole Miss Women's Tennis Team had an exceptional season. They finished the year with a record of 19-6(10-4 in the SEC). they finished third in the SEC.

The team finished eighth in the nation, which made them the second highest ranked team in the SEC; it also won them their sixth season in the top twenty-five. They competed in the semifinals, where they lost to first ranked Florida.The team competed in the NCAA Regional Tournament and advanced to compete in the NCAA National Championships.

Marie-Laure Bougnol finished the season ranked 49 in the nation. She received the ITA Sportsmanship Award and Leadership Award and was Kosida District Six Academic All-American.

Agnes Muzamel finished the season ranked twenty-sixth in the nation. She was also named to the All SEC Second Team and was named the ITA Southern Region's Player to Watch.

Courtney Chapman ranked as the 89th player in the nation. She was named the ITA Southern Region Rookie of the Year.

The Ole Miss Men's Tennis Team participated in the Men's NCAA National Championship Tournament for the 1995-96 season. This year the tournament was held at the University of Georgia in Athens.

The team entered the tournament as the number three seed behind Stanford and UCLA. In the first round of competition, they defeated Minnesota 4-0. In the quarterfinals they met and fell to Texas Christian University by a score of 1-4.

In addition to the team competition, Ole Miss also had three team members entered in the singles competition. Johan Landsberg was defeated in the second round. Ali Hamadeh was defeated in the quarterfinal round.

Johan Hede made it to the semifinals which was the farthest that an SEC player advanced in the tournament. He was defeated by the eventual National Champion in the singles division. This was Hede's third year making it to the semifinals of the tournament.

The 1996-1997 school year marked a continuing legacy of Greek organizations as an integral part of campus life. For many decades these groups have been a part of the heritage associated with the University of Mississippi. With combined membership numbering into the thousands, it would be hard for the Greek system to not have a significant impact on campus affairs. Being involved in Greek life enables many students to feel connected to the University and allows others the opportunity to experience new activities. During the year Greeks participate in activities ranging from social events to charity fund-raisers. Greeks establish their platforms through philanthropy work, and numerous groups benefit from the diligent fund-raising efforts of the Greek system at Ole Miss. As the University prepares for its sesquicentennial year, one can honestly say that the Greek system is uniting for tomorrow.

Secretary/Treasurer:

The Panhellenic council serves as the governing body of Ole Miss sororities. Comprised of eight executive officers, all sorority presidents and two representatives from each sorority, the council serves as a representative group which makes decisions concerning the women's Greek organizations.

The council serves a wide-range of duties and is the counterpart to the men's Inter Fraternal Council (IFC). Together with IFC, Panhellenic has instituted such programs as Adopt-A-School, and works in close connection with Ole Miss' administration and the Dean of Students office to ensure that the Greek community does its part and contributes positively to the surrounding university and Oxford communities.

Inter Fraternal Council

The Inter Fraternal Council (I.F.C.) serves many different roles at the University of Mississippi. I.F.C. regulates every facet of the greek system, and makes sure that everything runs smoothly.

The judicial system is an important part of the I.F.C. It keeps all of the fraternities in check and makes sure that all of the fraternities stay within the guidelines of the I.F.C. constitution. The vice president of Judicial and Education handles all of these responsibilities. He is also in charge of any programs which may further the excellent scholastic achievement of the university's fraternities.

Vice President of Rush maintains and prepares for the week of Rush. He will be the I.F.C. official that a rushee will come in contact with most often during Rush week. On top of those duties he will also be in charge of distributing the rushee blue cards and recommendations to each fraternity.

The Vice President of NPHC is also an important part of our council. He makes sure that all of the NPHC groups are well informed and are aware of all the rules and regulations of I.F.C.

Dues are collected once a semester, and minutes are taken at all of the meetings. All of these duties are handled by the Secretary/Treasurer.

The Director of Public Relations an Publications informs the board and council of all upcoming events. An added job of his is to put together the Angelia.

Finally we have the President who maintains control over the council and tries to run it efficiently as possible. The President of I.F.C. presides over all meetings and ultimately has the final decision.

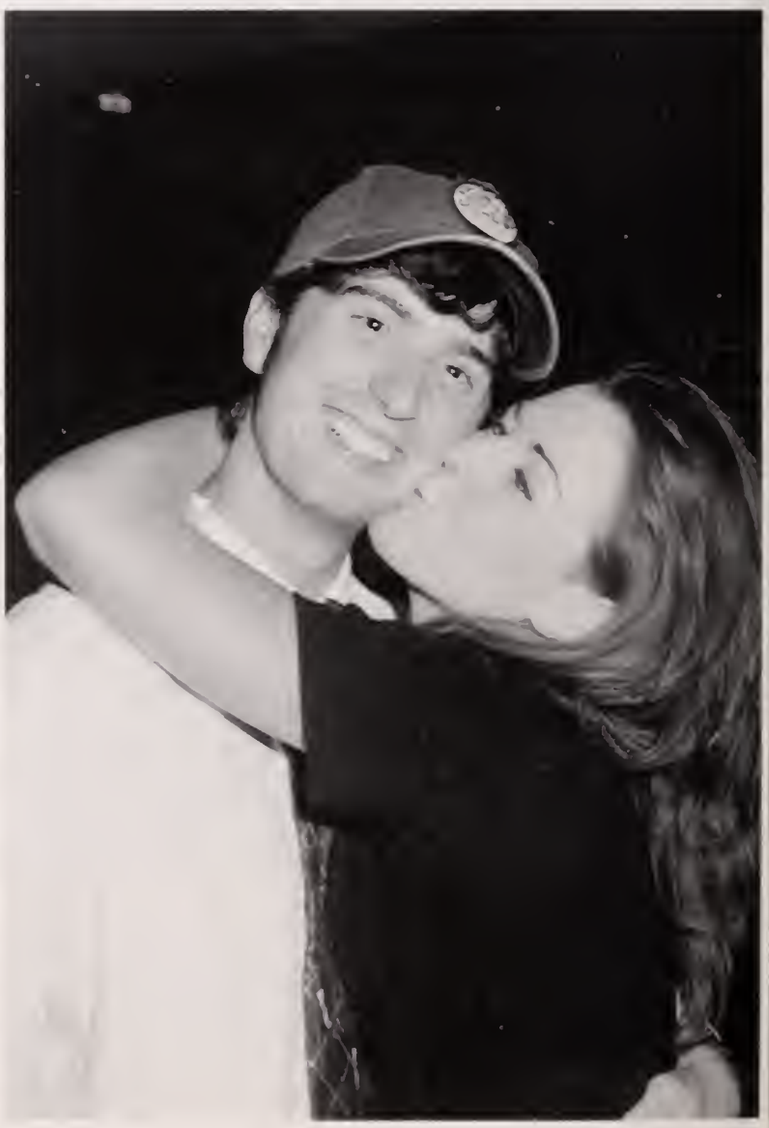

The I.F.C. takes on a large range of duties with the Greek system. All of these components make up the Executive Council, who could do little without the board. The board is made up of two representatives from each fraternity. This gives everyone an equal say, and maintains a balance with the system.

"With every friend I love who has been taken into the brown bosom of the earth a part of me has been buried there; but their contribution to my being of happiness, strength and understanding remains to sustain me in an altered world."

- Helen Keller

Editor's Closing

I can hardly believe that the yearbook is finally complete. This year has quickly passed, but it has been an unforgettable.

There are a number of people who have offered so much support to the staff and to me personally this year, and I send my sincere gratitude to each one. It was these friends and loved ones who made my experience as editor so rewarding, and they hold a special place in my heart.

Mama & Daddy, you are my champions. I cannot imagine two people who could be more loving, supportive, and selfless than you. You are my best friends, and I am very blessed to have you in my life.

Justin, you have grown up fast, and I am so proud of the young man you have become. I love you, baby brother.

Thanks to my grandparents and my family for giving me roots and a true sense of home. No matter how far I may wander, my heart will always remain amidst the hills, forests, pastures, and fields which are the setting for every wonderful childhood memory. You are all very dear to me.

Without my friends, this year would have been impossible. Thanks for lifting my spirits and making me laugh. You are the best friends I have ever known. Kat, Robin, and LK, a special thanks for taking such good care of me. I thank God for giving me sisters like you.

Traci, thanks for being a wonderful boss as well as a great friend. There would be no book without you.

Will, we couldn't have made it through the spring semester without your help and leadership. Thanks for helping me get a little tougher.

Section editors, photographers, and writers, thanks for the late nights, deadline effort, and dedication. I hope you are proud of the results of your toil!

Angela, you meant so much to this book and the direction it took. Thanks for everything.

Kevin, Philip and Trent, thanks for being on call 24-7 and for being wonderful listeners. You are treasures.

Emily...you ARE the "index queen." Thanks so much.

Student Media workers and journalism faculty & staff, thanks for all the support and smiles. You made this job entertaining. Laura &Mel--thanks for the laughs and the hallway conversations. Rob, thanks for all your ideas and concern.

Thanks, Ole Miss! Your cooperation was remarkable. I want to especially thank the Dept. of Student Life, Chancellor's Office, SID, University Publications, Public Relations, and everyone in the Lyceum for your assistance.

Finally I would like to thank our friends at TPC. Ben, Toni, Melody, Julie, April, Eddie, and the entire Taylor crew, you are the greatest people to work with. We LOVE Dallas!!

I thank God for blessing me with dear friends, and for the grace and perseverence to survive this year.

Colophon

The 1997 Ole Miss was printed by Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, Texas and produced by a staff of student volunteers with no direct affiliation to the university's Department of Journalism.

Distribution: The book is distributed in the spring semester. Full-time students pay for the book in advance with the payment of an activity fee of $8.60 per semester.

Production: The Ole Miss was produced on two Power Macintosh computers using QuarkXPress, Photoshop, and Freehand software. The press run was 6500.

Cover & Endsheets: The original cover and endsheets were designed by Amy Hall with the asistance of Eddie Walker and April Enos of Taylor Publishing Company. The base material of the cover is blue #452 with a Cordova grain. It is embossed with applied color in gray #900, a black overtone rub, and gold mylar. The endsheets were printed on gypsum passport paper with blue applied color.

Type: The main typeface used throughout the book is Seville.

Photography: Class and department head photos were taken by Thornton Studios of New York City, NY. Distinction section photos were taken by Candid Campus of Oxford. All other photos were taken by students using black and white T-Max, Tri-X, and Kodak Gold color. Black and white photographs were developed by Ole Miss staff members.

Budget: The total budget was $167,071. Page and book sales accounted for $26,485 of the total budget, and $140,583 came from student activity fees.

The 1997 Ole Miss is a student-run publication of The University of Mississippi. No portion of this book may be reproduced without the expressed written consent of the editor-in-chief or yearbook adviser.

After a thorough review, it was discovered that the volume number of the Ole Miss has been incorrect for several years. The correct volume number for this edition is Volume 100.

The viewpoints represented in this book are solely those of the yearbook staff, and do not necessarily reflect those of The University of Mississippi.
